

Oldest Human Ancestor Found

WASHINGTON (AP)—A British anthropologist announced Friday discovery of a new primitive species of human nearly two million years old that may be man's oldest known direct ancestor.

Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey and two other scientists who have studied fossil remains of the species found in East Africa have named it "Homo Habilis" from the Latin meaning roughly "man having ability." Leakey said the species was from 3 1/2 to 4 feet tall and may have been able to speak.

Leakey announced the discovery at a news conference at National Geographic Society headquarters. He said it "may rank some day as the most important in our knowledge of human evolution."

200 Stage Chester March

CHESTER, Pa. (AP)—For the eighth straight day, demonstrators marched through Chester Friday night protesting alleged de facto segregation in the schools.

Police said some 200 persons staged a peaceful march around the police station. No one was arrested.

Meanwhile, Cecil B. Moore, president of the Philadelphia chapter of the NAACP, said he sent a telegram to Gov. William W. Scranton protesting what Moore called "the use of state chamber, inquisition, kangaroo court procedure in Chester."

Authorities have denied this charge.

Electric Chair Death Delayed

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Bernard Ross, 44-year-old Clairton man who was scheduled to die in the electric chair next week for the 1961 slaying of a woman, won a stay of execution Friday in U. S. District Court.

Judge Edward Dunbar granted the stay on a writ of habeas corpus in which Ross charged that he was denied due process of law during his trial in Allegheny County Court.

Unemployment Drops To 324,000

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's unemployment rolls dropped to their lowest March level since 1957 this year, the State Labor and Industry Department reported Friday.

The number of jobless workers in March was estimated at 324,000, a reduction of 27,000 from February. The rate of unemployment dropped from 7.7 to 7.1 per cent of the total work force.

Trout Streams Will Disappear

PITTSBURGH (AP)—A conservation expert said Friday that at the present rate of attrition, there won't be one trout stream open to the public in Pennsylvania within 75 years.

That is not a prediction but a statistic. Bill Walsh told the Lakes & Streams Fishing Club, Walsh is conservation director for the Duquesne Brewing Co. of Pittsburgh.

He said that since 1951, Pennsylvania has lost more than 800 miles of trout streams due to pollution, postings and various other reasons. At present, he said, there are about 4,300 miles of approved trout streams in the state.

Shortway Need Local Planning

HARRISBURG (UPD)—Pennsylvania's newspaper editors were told Friday that the need for local planning commissions along interchanges of the Keystone Shortway is vital if the areas are not to be cheapened.

Daniel Rogers, state Commerce Department official, told a three-day seminar on the expanding tourist industry in the state that although there are some planning commissions in communities along the Shortway, "there are not nearly enough."

Judge Davis Upholds Board, But Frantz To Play Ball

STROUDSBURG — President Judge Fred W. Davis, in an opinion handed down yesterday, upheld the right of the Stroud Union School Board to limit the activities of married students.

His opinion cited three similar cases in which courts upheld the right of school boards to limit the activities of married students.

"Since this opinion involves only a special injunction, we shall not go into a discussion of these matters (the previous court cases) at this time. It suffices to say that we agree with the action of the said courts in sustaining the said school boards," the judge explained.

School In Error Judge Davis pointed out, however, the school board was in error when it allowed Frantz to play a full season of baseball and football after the school administration was notified of the boy's marriage in December of 1962.

"But, the school authorities having implied to him that he could play varsity athletics and let him in the spring and fall of last year, in our opinion were in no proper position to deprive him of the opportunity to engage in the sport elsewhere."

"We do not believe the court of equity should countenance

such a situation, and therefore, shall enter a decree restraining the school district from precluding this plaintiff from playing baseball this spring because of the fact that he is married," Judge Davis said.

The injunction will take effect upon the plaintiff's entering a $100 injunction bond approved by the court. Judge Davis explained the bond is required to protect the school board from costs or damages in carrying out the injunction.

Reaction Reaction of interested parties to the judge's opinion included: Fred Frantz, 17-year-old subject of the suit, said last night: "I am tickled to death with Judge Davis' decision."

"It's really great, and I appreciate everything everyone has done for me."

"It's a great asset to be able to play high school baseball now, while major league scouts and colleges are looking for high school ball players."

George L. Frantz, Fred's father, said: "I'm so happy about it all. . . I certainly was surprised, since the court had previously rejected the temporary injunction. . . I was so surprised that the court recognized the truth of the thing and we're all very happy. . . It was a very pleasant surprise to all of us."

Atty. Lee B. Koehler, who represented Frantz during the proceedings, said, "Of course I am delighted. The only problem I can envision for this year is the boy's performance. I hope he has another fine year, for surely, everyone's eyes will be on him."

"I am indebted to a number of extremely responsible educators, who enabled me to present what was, from the outset, an obviously difficult case."

In upholding the school board's right to regulate the activities of its students, Judge Davis' opinion, in part, read: "Council has not cited, nor have we found, any Pennsylvania decisions involving the right of a school board to prohibit participation by a student in interscholastic athletics for the sole reason that he or she has contracted marriage."

"However, our own appellate courts have clearly set forth the powers of a school board concerning matters committed by law to its discretion."

The opinion was critical of the manner in which school officials handled Frantz after they were told the youth was married.

It cited the fact that Frantz's father, George, visited Alfred Munson, high school principal, and told him his son was married in December, 1962.

Munson told the father, according to the opinion, that he would ask Earl Groner, superintendent of schools, to stop young Frantz from playing interscholastic sports.

Judge Davis points out that Munson told the father he would contact him if Groner agreed with him (Munson's) attitude on married athletes.

The judge said testimony at the two-day hearing showed

Frantz's father never heard from Munson or any other school official and took this to mean his son would be allowed to play.

Needs Baseball "That baseball is extremely important to this young man is clearly demonstrated," Judge Davis said.

He added that because of Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Assn. rules the boy could not move from one district to another just to play baseball.

"Thus it is clear that if this young man does not play baseball at the Stroud Union High School he cannot play baseball in any other public school system in Pennsylvania this spring."

Fighting Gen. MacArthur Enters 'Peaceful Coma'

WASHINGTON (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur took an apparent turn for the worse Friday in his stubborn fight for life, showing "signs of entering a peaceful coma."

The ominous word that the five-star general was approaching "coma," the deepest kind of unconsciousness and frequently the last stage of an illness in aged persons—came late this afternoon from Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general.

Heaton, the chief surgeon in all three of MacArthur's major surgical operations since March 6, gave no amplification to the terse, one-sentence bulletin.

But it appeared obvious that a definite change—whether reversible or not—had occurred in the general's condition. And the bulletin marked the first time the word "coma" had been used in any bulletin concerning his condition since MacArthur entered Walter Reed Army Hospital March 2.

A condition of unconsciousness would not necessarily mean the stoppage of the "peritoneal dialysis" technique which is now being used on an emergency basis to try to reverse MacArthur's diminished kidney function which had presented a grave complication to his most recent surgical operation.

Use of the technique was started Thursday in efforts to reverse the diminished kidney function which has beset Mac-

Arthur since his last operation. It involves sending fluid chemicals into his abdomen through a small incision to flush out poisons from his bloodstream—a job ordinarily done by the kidneys.

Unconsciousness "Coma" is the most profound form of unconsciousness and can have a variety of causes, among them "shock"—a depletion of bodily fluids that sometimes follows extensive surgery. Another cause is poisoning of the system by external or internal means.

In aged persons, coma is frequently the last stage of an illness.

11 Girls In Pocono Pageant SWITZWATER — The Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant at the Pocono Mountains Joint High School in Switzwater opens tonight at 8.

Sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, and directed by the Barrett Junior Woman's Club, the pageant will have a vacation theme, "Passport to Fun."

The 11 girls who will compete for the title and the right to represent the Poconos in the state finals for the Miss America Pageant will appear against five vacant backdrops in bathing suits, evening gowns and talent routines.

Sharon Kay Ritchie, Miss America of 1956, will assist the master of ceremonies, William Longworth, announcer for a Scranton radio station. Miss Ritchie will also crown the winner.

In addition to the crown and the title, the winner will receive a State senatorial scholarship and a trophy. There will also be a trophy for the first runner-up and for Miss Congeniality, who is chosen by the contestants themselves.

Additional scholarships amounting to $160 will also be awarded.

Final rehearsal will be held at the high school this afternoon at 1 p. m. when the judges will hold personal interviews with the contestants.

Mrs. Ernest LaBar will be organizer for the performance. Barton Dunlap has designed the stage settings and Lee Wessner is lighting coordinator.

Borough President On Bail

ROSETO — Leonard Romano, 54, of 506 Garibaldi Ave., Roseto, yesterday waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace Lewis Martocci, of Roseto and remains free on $1,000 bail.

He will appear in June before the Northampton Criminal Court in Eastern on charges of bookmaking, pool selling, setting up and maintaining a gambling establishment.

The charges were made by State Police from the Eastern substation on March 14.

Romano is president of Roseto Borough Council.

Martocci said, "The transcript shows raiding officers found in Romano's home, at the time of the raid, two slips of white paper containing 50 horse bets, two torn pieces of white paper from a trash can in back of the house which contained horse bets, a copy of the Morning Telegraph dated March 14, 1964, and a cash box in the attic of the home with $4,500 in it."

The Morning Telegraph is a publication listing race results, according to Martocci.

Morse Blasts GOP Medical Director, 74

HARRISBURG (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse lashed out at Gov. Scranton Friday for appointing a 74-year-old ex-congressman as medical director of the state Public Welfare Department.

"The appointment of Dr. Ivor Fenton is an obvious attempt to provide a political cushion," Morse declared in a statement.

"The problems of Pennsylvania's mental health, our retarded children, and our senior citizens deserve the best possible and most modern medical counsel."

Morse asked Scranton "what excuse there is for placing Dr. Fenton who has practiced medicine only occasionally on weekends in Mahanoy City on a tax-

supported payroll."

"Dr. Fenton is a respected man and has a long record of political service," Morse stated. "It is admirable that Gov. Scranton wants to take care of him with a political appointment. But is this the constructive way to solve the problems of all of these senior citizens in Pennsylvania or is it just another case of austerity talk versus power politics in action?"

Morse praised the governor however for his appointment of Capt. John Grosnik as chief of staff for the Pennsylvania state police.

"Perhaps he should have been named commissioner instead of E. Wilson Purdy," Morse observed.

Meter Firm Head Describes Kickback

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An official of a parking meter firm testified Friday that he and two other men held preliminary negotiations in 1960 and 1961 for the purchase of 500 parking meters for the city of Reading.

The testimony came during the trial of former Reading mayor John C. Kubacki and Abraham Minkler, on charges of extorting $10,500 and an $850 clock from two parking meter firms doing business with Reading.

Hughes said he told them Loefer might be able to buy the clock wholesale, as a sales representative. The commission increase was eventually authorized by the company.

However, Loefer turned down the appointment as sales representative.

Hughes said there were two other meetings with Loefer and Minkler. He said former Reading Police Chief Charles S. Wade was present at one of them,

Another Earthquake Shakes Anchorage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Another sharp earthquake shook Anchorage at 12:41 Alaska Standard Time. It was not as long or severe as the one that devastated this area last Friday.

The tremor sent people streaming into the street from buildings already damaged by the Good Friday earthquake.

There was no apparent damage in the downtown area, and there were no immediate reports of casualties.

In the Anchorage Times building, the quake seemed to start with a gentle rocking motion and then picked up in intensity within a moment or two.

Equipment which was knocked to the floor last week remained standing.

Anchorage has had a series of aftershocks since the main quake. This was by far the most severe of the aftershocks.

The new quake lasted not more than 30 seconds.

It was felt also at Fairbanks and Valdez—at 12:41 p.m. Alaska Standard Time—but not so severely, those points reported.

Still jittery with the memory of the massive quake one week ago, workmen and employees in downtown Anchorage buildings fled to the streets.

State Civil Defense officials here said no reports had been received as yet from outlying areas.

In Seattle, seismologist Norman Rasmussen said the new shock appeared to be in the range of 6.5 to 7 on the Richter scale on the visual recorder.

The major shock last week was 8.4 on the scale.

Civil Defense Region 8 headquarters in Everett Wash., warned coastal points in the state to watch for possible wave action.

Brazil Fights Collapse

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—With a promise of U.S. cooperation, Provisional President Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli flew here from Brasilia on Friday night to tackle Brazil's perilous economic problems and the aftermath of revolutionary upheaval.

The wife and two children of deposed President Joao Goulart arrived meanwhile by plane at a small airfield near Montevideo, Uruguay, and went into hiding.

Their pilot said Goulart remained in Brazil—presumably at his Brazilian ranch estate on the Argentine border. It was believed in Uruguay that Goulart would follow his family into exile.

Army generals who overthrew Goulart in a three-day revolution undertaken, they said, to prevent a Cuban-style Brazilian slide into the Communist camp—said they believed Goulart had crossed the Uruguay River into Argentina or perhaps had gone elsewhere.

But officials of Argentina, Paraguay and Uruguay all reported he had not arrived in those countries.

It was generally agreed that Goulart was washed up politically, for the present at least. The generals in power with Mazzilli began releasing Communist labor leaders and other Goulart backers from jails.

Pledges U.S. Aid For New Regime

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk pictured the ouster of President Joao Goulart as a victory for Brazil. And he proclaimed U.S. readiness "to work very closely" with the new regime to help pull the country out of economic chaos.

Rusk said concern had mounted among Brazilian congressmen, state governors, the military, "moderate, democratic elements" and "large segments of the people" that the left-leaning Goulart was moving toward "some sort of authoritarian regime."

The United States shared the same view of the spectacular Brazilian overturn, after official U.S. silence had been broken by a message of good wishes from President Johnson to the new Paschoal Ranieri Mazzilli.

Friendly Decision Administration sources said Johnson's decision for a friendly U.S. posture was taken on advice of the U.S. ambassador in Brazil, Lincoln Gordon, seconded by foreign policy advisers here.

It was stated that, while the U.S. government does not like to see Latin-American governments overturned by military pressure, it is pleased that in Brazil this happened without bloodshed.

Furthermore, officials here note that the new president is a constitutional successor, rather than a military appointee.

Rusk said that Brazil's armed forces have shown, over the last several years, that they are basically committed to constitutional government.

He predicted that Brazil now will take a leading part in hemisphere opposition to Communist Cuba, because of the deep commitment of the anti-Goulart forces "to constitutional government, and to representative democracy."

Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. policy of determining recognition of a new government according to the circumstances in each case. While the United States is committed "to the strong and vigorous support of democratic and constitutional institutions," he said, it — "unhappily" — there might be a military takeover somewhere, the United States cannot "simply walk away" from the situation.

The agreement provides for each country to name a special ambassador to work immediately for "a just and fair agreement" removing differences between the two countries.

Johnson immediately named former secretary of the treasury Robert B. Anderson as the special U.S. emissary.

Red Split Beyond Repair?

MOSCOW (AP)—The violent Soviet counterattack against Communist China persuaded Western diplomats Friday that the Red bloc is split almost beyond patching.

But several Eastern sources, although recognizing the schism, insisted there is a possibility it will be overcome.

"East and West have been arguing for years over disarmament," said one Communist diplomat. "The two sides in the Communist camp can also argue for years without bringing a break."

But the open collision between Chinese and Soviet Communists was glaringly outlined in the seven-page doctrinal speech by Moscow's chief theoretician, Mikhail A. Suslov, published Friday in the Communist party paper Pravda.

This was a long-delayed answer to maneuvers of Mao Tse-tung's Peking regime that the paper denounced in such terms as slanderous concoctions, vicious accusations, ideological recency, splitting activity, a hypocritical game, blackmail, a policy in which petty bourgeois adventurism merges with great power chauvinism.

The tacit Chinese repudiation of Soviet proposals for a series of meetings leading to a Red summit conference appeared to Western sources in Moscow as nearly final.

In an editorial published along with the seven-page outline of the Soviet party position, Pravda told how the Soviet party had on March 7 invited the Red Chinese to a series of talks looking toward a fall summit meeting.

The Chinese responded by heating up their attack on Soviet Premier Khrushchev, calling him "the greatest capitulationist in history."

Pravda said the Soviet party Central Committee proposed in its letter to Peking that the two sides get together in May and then the same group that organized the Moscow conference of 1960 should meet in June or July. That group included representatives from 26 Communist parties.

The letter suggested that they should prepare a "conference of all fraternal parties in the autumn of 1964," Pravda related.

"After this letter the Chinese leaders, far from discontinuing the discussion, developed it with even greater fierceness. This campaign culminated in the editorial job in the newspaper Jen Min Jih Pao and the magazine Honechi of March 31. This article, from the first to the last line, was a gross insult to our party and all Soviet people," Pravda said.

"It proved completely that the leaders of the Communist party of China had transgressed all limits in their political struggle against the world Communist movement."

By then the Chinese undoubtedly knew in detail what the Soviet party had to say, for the long speech by Suslov that Pravda published was made Feb. 14 before the Soviet party Central Committee in Moscow.

In the interval, the Soviet party had made one more effort—evidently through a touring Romanian delegation—to get the Chinese to back down. It didn't work.

Judge Davis Upholds Board, But Frantz To Play Ball

STROUDSBURG — President Judge Fred W. Davis, in an opinion handed down yesterday, upheld the right of the Stroud Union School Board to limit the activities of married students but issued a special injunction allowing Fred Frantz, married senior, to play baseball this spring.

His opinion cited three similar cases in which courts upheld the right of school boards to limit the activities of married athletes.

"Since this opinion involves only a special injunction, we shall not go into a discussion of these matters (the previous court cases) at this time. It suffices to say that we agree with the action of the said courts in sustaining the said school boards," the judge explained.

School In Error

Judge Davis pointed out, however, the school board was in error when it allowed Frantz to play a full season of baseball and football after the school administration was notified of the boy's marriage in December of 1962.

"But, the school authorities having implied to him that he could play varsity athletics and allowed him to play varsity athletics in the spring and fall of last year, in our opinion were in no proper position to deprive him of the opportunity to engage in the sport elsewhere.

"We do not believe the court of equity should countenance such a situation, and therefore, shall enter a decree restraining the school district from precluding this plaintiff from playing baseball this spring because of the fact that he is married," Judge Davis said.

The injunction will take effect upon the plaintiff's entering a $100 injunction bond approved by the court. Judge Davis explained the bond is required to protect the school board from costs or damages in carrying out the injunction.

Reaction

Reaction of interested parties to the judge's opinion included: Fred Frantz, 17-year-old subject of the suit, said last night: "I am tickled to death with Judge Davis' decision.

"It's really great, and I appreciate everything everyone has done for me.

"It's a great asset to be able to play high school baseball now, while major league scouts and colleges are looking for high school ball players."

George L. Frantz, Fred's father, said: "I'm so happy about it all. I certainly was surprised, since the court had previously rejected the temporary injunction. "I am indebted to a number of extremely responsible educators, who enabled me to present what was, from the outset, an obviously difficult case.

See text of Judge Davis' decision on Page 5

"The considerable burden of this case was lightened by the defendant's able and considerate counsel, Atty. Edward Williams," Koehler said.

Williams said, "I haven't discussed this with the board yet and I don't know what their desires will be concerning future action.

School Board Power

In upholding the school board's right to regulate the activities of its students, Judge Davis' opinion, in part, read: "Council has not cited, nor have we found, any Pennsylvania decisions involving the right of a school board to prohibit participation by a student in interscholastic athletics for the sole reason that he or she has contracted marriage.

"However, our own appellate courts have clearly set forth the powers of a school board concerning matters committed by law to its discretion.

Munson told the father, according to the opinion, that he would ask Earl Groner, superintendent of schools, to stop young Frantz from playing interscholastic sports.

Judge Davis points out that Munson told the father he would contact him if Groner agreed with his (Munson's) attitude on married athletes.

The judge said testimony at the two-day hearing showed

Frantz's father never heard from Munson or any other school official and took this to mean his son would be allowed to play.

Needs Baseball

"That baseball is extremely important to this young man is clearly demonstrated," Judge Davis said.

He added that because of Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Assn. rules the boy could not move from one district to another just to play baseball.

"Thus it is clear that if this young man does not play baseball at the Stroud Union High School he cannot play baseball in any other public school system in Pennsylvania this spring."

Fighting Gen. MacArthur
Enters 'Peaceful Coma'

WASHINGTON (AP)—General Douglas MacArthur took an apparent turn for the worst Friday in his stubborn fight for life, showing "signs of entering a peaceful coma."

The ominous word that the five-star general was approaching "coma"—the deepest kind of unconsciousness and frequently the last stage of an illness in aged persons—came late this afternoon from Lt. Gen. Leonard D. Heaton, the Army's surgeon general.

Heaton, the chief surgeon in all three of MacArthur's major surgical operations since March 6, gave no amplification to the terse, one-sentence bulletin.

But it appeared obvious that a definite change—whether reversible or not—had occurred in the general's condition. And the bulletin marked the first time the word "coma" had been used in any bulletin concerning his condition since MacArthur entered Walter Reed Army Hospital March 2.

A condition of unconsciousness would not necessarily mean the stoppage of the "peritoneal dialysis" technique which is now being used on an emergency basis to try to reverse MacArthur's diminished kidney function which had presented a grave complication to his most recent surgical operation.

Use of the technique was started Thursday in efforts to reverse the diminished kidney function which has beset Mac-

Arthur since his last operation. It involves sending fluid chemicals into his abdomen through a small incision to flush out poisons from his bloodstream—a job ordinarily done by the kidneys.

Unconsciousness

"Coma" is the most profound form of unconsciousness and can have a variety of causes, among them "shock"—a depletion of bodily fluids that sometimes follows extensive surgery. Another cause is poisoning of the system by external or internal means.

In aged persons, coma is frequently the last stage of an illness.

Scott: Scranton
Likely Candidate

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Friday Gov. William W. Scranton would have a good chance to become the Republican presidential nominee if the GOP convention reached a deadlock.

Scott, a former Republican national chairman, said the "convention is rapidly approaching the conditions of a deadlock."

None of the announced or potential candidates for the presidential nomination, including Scranton, will have "anything like a majority (of delegate votes) the day the convention begins," Scott added.

He told reporters at a luncheon, however, that Scranton might first have to clarify conditions under which he would accept the nomination by extending statements he has already made to include a convention deadlock.

"I, myself, believe this would lead to his becoming the nominee," Scott added.

Scranton has said he is not a candidate for the nomination but would accept an "honest and sincere draft."

Scott said professional Repu-lican politicians like Scranton don't don't think he's known well enough throughout the country.

Scott also called a "wise precaution" the move by Pennsylvania Republican state Chairman Craig Truax to initiate a presidential write-in campaign in Scranton's behalf for the April 28 primary election.

Truax has ordered one million Scranton stickers which could be pasted to a ballot as a write-in vote for the governor.

Scranton Against President Boom

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton of Pennsylvania will not encourage the growing number of supporters booming him for the Republican presidential nomination this year, one of his closest aides said Friday.

Commenting on current reports that Scranton might make a statement soon tending to encourage those who put him in the White House, the aide said: "I anticipate no movement by the governor to encourage his supporters."

Morse Blasts GOP
Medical Director, 74

HARRISBURG (AP)—Democratic State Chairman Otis B. Morse lashed out at Gov. Scranton Friday for appointing a 74-year-old ex-congressman as medical director of the state Public Welfare Department.

"The appointment of Dr. Ivor Fenton is an obvious attempt to provide a political cushion," Morse declared in a statement. "The problems of Pennsylvania's mental health, our retarded children, and our senior citizens deserve the best possible and most modern medical counsel."

Morse asked Scranton "what excuse there is for placing Dr. Fenton who has practiced medicine only occasionally on weekends in Mahanoy City on a tax-

supported payroll."

"Dr. Fenton is a respected man and has a long record of political service," Morse stated. "It is admirable that Gov. Scranton wants to take care of him with a political appointment. But is this the constructive way to solve the problems of all of these senior citizens in Pennsylvania or is it just another case of austerity talk versus power politics in action?"

Morse praised the governor however for his appointment of Capt. John Gromick as chief of staff for the Pennsylvania state police.

"Perhaps he should have been named commissioner instead of E. Wilson Purdy," Morse observed.

Meter Firm Head
Describes Kickback

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—An official of a parking meter firm testified Friday that he and two other men held preliminary negotiations in 1960 and 1961 for the purchase of 500 parking meters for the city of Reading.

The testimony came during the trial of former Reading mayor John C. Kubaicki and Abraham Minkler, on charges of extorting $10,500 and an $880 clock from two parking meter firms doing business with Reading.

Walter Hughes, general manager of Karpak Corp., the meter manufacturer, said he had met with Minkler and Reading bell bondsman Joseph M. Liever, a former sales representative for Karpak, behind Minkler's supermarket in Reading.

Hughes said Minkler wanted a sales commission of $15, instead of the usual $12, for each parking meter purchased, and that he asked Hughes for a half clock for Kubaicki.

Hughes said he told them Liever might be able to buy the clock wholesale, as a sales representative. However, Liever turned down the appointment as sales representative.

Hughes said there were two other meetings with Liever and Minkler. He said former Reading Police Chief Charles S. Wade was present at one of them,

11 Girls
In Pocono
Pageant

SWIFTWATER — The Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant at the Pocono Mountains Joint High School in Swiftwater opens tonight at 8.

Sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, and directed by the Barrett Junior Woman's Club, the pageant will have a vacation theme, "Passport to Fun."

The 11 girls who will compete for the title and the right to represent the Poconos in the state finals for the Miss America Pageant will appear against five vacation backdrops in bathing suits, evening gowns and talent routines.

Sharon Kay Ritchie, Miss America of 1956, will assist the master of ceremonies, William Longworth, announcer for a Scranton radio station. Miss Ritchie will also crown the winner.

In addition to the crown and the title, the winner will receive a State senatorial scholarship and a trophy. There will also be a trophy for the first runner-up and for Miss Congeniality, who is chosen by the contestants themselves.

Additional scholarships amounting to $160 will also be awarded.

Final rehearsal will be held at the high school this afternoon at 1 p. m. when the judges will hold personal interviews with the contestants.

Mrs. Ernest LaBar will be organist for the performance. Barton Dunlap has designed the stage settings and Lee Wessner is lighting coordinator.

Borough
President
On Bail

ROSETO—Leonard Romano, 54, of 506 Garibaldi Ave., Roseto, yesterday waived a hearing before Justice of the Peace Lewis Martocci, of Roseto and remains free on $1,000 bail.

He will appear in June before the Northampton Criminal Court in Easton on charges of book-making, pool selling, setting up and maintaining a gambling establishment.

The charges were made by State Police from the Easton substation on March 14.

Romano is president of Roseto Borough Council.

Martocci said, "The transcript shows raiding officers found in Romano's home, at the time of the raid, two slips of white paper containing 50 horse bets, two torn pieces of white paper from a trash can in back of the house which contained horse bets, a copy of the Morning Telegraph dated March 14, 1964, and a cash box in the attic of the home with $4,500 in it."

The Morning Telegraph is a publication listing race results, according to Martocci.

Another Earthquake
Shakes Anchorage

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Another sharp earthquake shook Anchorage at 12:41 Alaska Standard Time. It was not as long or severe as the one that devastated this area last Friday.

The tremor sent people streaming into the street from buildings already damaged by the Good Friday earthquake.

There was no apparent damage in the downtown area, and there were no immediate reports of casualties.

In the Anchorage Times building, the quake seemed to start with a gentle rocking motion and then picked up in intensity within a moment or two.

Equipment which was knocked to the floor last week remained standing.

Anchorage has had a series of aftershocks since the main quake. This was by far the most severe of the aftershocks.

The new quake lasted not more than 30 seconds.

It was felt also at Fairbanks and Valdez—at 12:41 p.m. Alaska Standard Time—but not severely, those points reported.

Still jittery with the memory of the massive quake one week ago, workmen and employees in downtown Anchorage buildings fled to the streets.

State Civil Defense officials here said no reports had been received as yet from outlying areas.

In Seattle, seismologist Norman Rasmussen said the new shock appeared to be in the range of 6.5 to 7 on the Richter scale on the visual recorder.

The major shock last week was 8.4 on the scale.

Civil Defense Region 8 headquarters in Everett, Wash., warned coastal points in the state to watch for possible wave action.

Brazil
Fights
Collapse

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP)—With a promise of U.S. cooperation, Provisional President Paschoa Ranieri Mazzilli flew here from Brasilia on Friday night to tackle Brazil's perilous economic problems and the aftermath of revolutionary upheaval.

The wife and two children of deposed President Joao Goulart arrived meanwhile by plane at a small airfield near Montevideo, Uruguay, and went into hiding.

Their pilot said Goulart remained in Brazil—presumably at his Brazilian ranch estate on the Argentine border. It was believed in Uruguay that Goulart would follow his family into exile.

Army generals who overthrew Goulart in a three-day revolution undertaken, they said, to prevent a Cuban-style Brazilian slide into the Communist camp—said they believed Goulart had crossed the Uruguay River into Argentina or perhaps had gone elsewhere.

But officials of Argentina, Paraguay and Uruguay all reported he had not arrived in those countries.

It was generally agreed that Goulart was washed up politically, for the present at least. The generals in power with Mazzilli began releasing Communist labor leaders and other Goulart backers from jails.

Pledges U.S. Aid
For New Regime

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk pictured the ouster of President Joao Goulart as a victory for Brazil. And he proclaimed U.S. readiness "to work very closely" with the new regime to help pull the country out of economic chaos.

Rusk said concern had mounted among Brazilian congressmen, state governors, the military, "moderate, democratic elements" and "large segments of the people" that the

U.S.-Panama Relations Restored

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Panama agreed Friday to reestablish diplomatic relations and seek elimination of causes of conflict—a step hailed by President Johnson as marking "truly a great day" for all sides.

The agreement was signed in a public ceremony at the Pan-American Union, U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker signed for the United States and Miguel Moreno for Panama.

From there, the ambassadors of the nations in the Organization of American States went to the White House in response to an invitation from Johnson, delivered by Bunker.

"This is truly a great day for the American people, for Panama, for all the Western Hemisphere and for all freedom-loving people everywhere," Johnson said at the White House gathering.

Congressional leaders also were there.

The agreement provides for each country to name a special ambassador to work immediately for "a just and fair agreement" removing differences between the two countries.

Johnson immediately named former secretary of the treasury Robert B. Anderson as the special U.S. emissary.

left-leaning Goulart was moving toward "some sort of authoritarian regime."

The United States shared the merits were having more and more influence" in the Goulart administration, Rusk said. But he denied a Cuban charge that Washington engineered the revolution.

Rusk's news conference remarks set forth Friday the U.S. view of the spectacular Brazilian overturn, after official U.S. silence had been broken by a message of good wishes from President Johnson to the new Paschoa Ranieri Mazzilli.

Friendly Decision

Administration sources said Johnson's decision for a friendly U.S. posture was taken on advice of the U.S. ambassador in Brazil, Lincoln Gordon, seconded by foreign policy advisers here.

It was stated that, while the U.S. government does not like to see Latin-American governments overturned by military pressure, it is pleased that in Brazil this happened without bloodshed.

Furthermore, officials here note that the new president is a constitutional successor, rather than a military appointee.

Rusk said that Brazil's armed forces have shown, over the last several years, that they are basically committed to constitutional government.

He predicted that Brazil now will take a leading part in hemisphere opposition to Communist Cuba, because of the deep commitment of the anti-Goulart forces "to constitutional government, and to representative democracy."

Rusk reaffirmed the U.S. policy of determining recognition of a new government according to the circumstances in each case. While the United States is committed "to the strong and vigorous support of democratic and constitutional institutions," he said, if "unhappily" there might be a military takeover somewhere, the United States cannot "simply walk away" from the situation.

Red Split Beyond Repair?

MOSCOW (AP)—The violent Soviet counterattack against Communist China persuaded Western diplomats Friday that the Red bloc is split almost beyond patching.

But several Eastern sources, although recognizing the schism, insisted there is a possibility it will be overcome.

"East and West have been arguing for years over disarmament," said one Communist diplomat. "The two sides in the Communist camp can also argue for years without bringing a break."

But the open collision between Chinese and Soviet Communists was glaringly outlined in the seven-page doctrinal speech by Moscow's chief theoretician, Mikhail A. Suslov, published Friday in the Communist party paper Pravda.

This was a long-delayed answer to maneuvers of Mao Tse-tung's Peking regime that the paper denounced in such terms as slanderous concoctions, vicious accusations, ideological recency, splitting activity, a hypocritical game, blackmail, a policy in which petty bourgeois adventurism merges with great power chauvinism.

The tacit Chinese repudiation of Soviet proposals for a series of meetings leading to a Red summit conference appeared to Western sources in Moscow as nearly final.

In an editorial published along with the seven-page outline of the Soviet party position, Pravda told how the Soviet party had on March 7 invited the Red Chinese to a series of talks looking toward a fall summit meeting.

The Chinese responded by heating up their attack on Soviet Premier Khrushchev, calling him "the greatest capitalist imperialist in history."

Pravda said the Soviet party Central Committee proposed in its letter to Peking that the two sides get together in May and then the same group that organized the Moscow conference of 1960 should meet in June or July. That group included representatives from 26 Communist parties.

The letter suggested that they should prepare a "conference of all fraternal parties in the autumn of 1964," Pravda related.

"After this letter the Chinese leaders, far from discontinuing the discussion, developed it with even greater fierceness. This campaign culminated in the editorial in the newspaper Jen Min Jih Pao and the magazine Honchi of March 31. This article, from the first to the last line, was a gross insult to our party and all Soviet people," Pravda said.

"It proved completely that the leaders of the Communist party of China had transgressed all limits in their political struggle against the world Communist movement."

By then the Chinese undoubtedly knew in detail what the Soviet party had to say, for the long speech by Suslov that Pravda published was made Feb. 14 before the Soviet party Central Committee in Moscow.

In the interval, the Soviet party had made one more effort—evidently through a touring Romanian delegation—to get the Chinese to back down. It didn't work.

This Is God's Universe

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Alfred J. Boescher

Scripture—Job 38:1-11; Isaiah 40:12-26; 42:1-12.

Moses, the Lawgiver, attributes the creation of the universe to God alone. God took counsel with others before creating man. His final and supreme work.—Genesis 1:1, 26, 31.

David, the Poet, sings of God's wisdom in creating a useful and universe, urges all to join in his blessing and praising.—Psalms 104:10-12, 14, 24, 33; 24:1, 2.

Isaiah, the Prophet, berates man for not recognizing his own smallness and powerlessness in the light of God's omnipotence; warns against graven images.—Isaiah 40:12-26.

God tells Isaiah of the coming of "His Servant"—the Lord Jesus Christ—revealing His two-fold mission.—Isaiah 42:1-12.

GOLDEN TEXT: Psalms 24:1.

Today's Lesson:

This Is God's Universe

By R. H. Ramsey

The opening chapter of the Bible reads like a super-condensed Outline of History. The verses account for the beginnings of all things we see: the sun, moon and stars, light, land, water, animals and men, without lengthy "hows and whys" of the origins of each. The ancient writer says simply, God made them and it was very good.

In this one statement he assumes the existence of God, an eternal, omnipotent, infinitely intelligent Supreme Being capable of creating an order of matter and mind that was perfect in every way, each part functioning according to a divine plan.

Not until Genesis 1:26 do we find a reference to man. And for the first time in the account of the creation, we find the use of a plural pronoun and a plural possessive: "Let us make man in our image, after our likeness," indicating that God took counsel with at least one other in this supreme and final work of creation. Who? Certainly not the angels who were incapable of creation. It had to be the other two beings of the Godhead, the Son and the Holy Ghost, the only others, outside of God, Himself, having the powers of creation.

In the 104th Psalm, we have a poet's rendition of the story of creation. We will skip verses 2-9, covering the creation of light and the separation of the earth from the waters above it, and consider the creative work of the third day. The Psalmist's view of Nature—in ascribing all its processes directly to God—is characteristic. Equally characteristic is the absence of any expression of a sense of beauty. He thinks only of Nature's usefulness to man. Where there is water, there are life, vegetation and animals for the benefit of man.

Then he breaks forth in an acclamation of blessing and praising Jehovah: The earth is so full of the Lord's riches! How wise God is to have made so many of them: As God should find pleasure in His dumb creatures, so His reasoning creatures should find their joy in Him!

In Job 38:1-11, we find Jehovah questioning Job, taking him back to the time of creation, his own insignificance in the light of God's vastness. And Job is reminded of the brevity of his own life in comparison to the great antiquity of time.

The prophet Isaiah takes the reader back to the work of creation again in chapter 40:12-26. He emphasizes the vastness of the heavens, the tremendous weight of the mountains and the infinite wisdom shown in all of Nature. Who could have espoused God in all of this? Certainly not man, for, even after thousands of years, he has not even begun to comprehend the mysteries of God's creation. Nor does he understand that, vast as it is, the earth is no more than a pinpoint in the great universe surrounding it.

Then the prophet warns against likening God to any man-made image. For if men will only recognize their own smallness and powerlessness in the light of God's omnipotence, they cannot fail to see that just as God created His marvelous universe, from nothing, so also can He reduce it.

In Isaiah 42:1-12, we find God's own declarations concerning "His Servant," who, of course, is none other than the Lord Jesus Christ. The two-fold mission of His Servant would be to fulfill the covenant promises to the people of Israel and to bring the light of revelation to the Gentiles.

FAITH

Faith is the force of life. —Tolstoy

Parson To

by Roderick MacLeod

The Warm Ones
The breath of God breathes upon the cold earth and the warmth revitalizes the hidden life into springing forth with all the colors that makes spring such a delight.

The miracle of rebirth once again is demonstrated for man to see. The change from the solitary white of winter to the warmth of colors always thrills the heart. This "glad to be alive" feeling is part of this rebirth called spring and refreshes our souls.

The warm sun spreads joy upon golf links, swimming pools, picnic groves and churches alike. Any Sunday morning of for a contrast of extremes from now on. Some folks will bathe their bronze bodies in the full glare of the sun god ultra-violet and infra red. They will toast and roast until their skin takes on the texture of an old leather trophy from Africa that great-granddaddy shot and now is the best dust collector in the Pecos.

The warm ones include the golf addict. This curious oddity of human takes unholily delight in putting a little white ball into a little black hole for 18 consecutive times. He usually uses language that wits the wildflowers as he does his ritual dance on the green identified only by a wee flag with a number from 1 to 18 on it. The warm ones go to great discomfort for the privilege of carrying food out into the open to sacrifice to the red and black ant. No doubt a throwback to animal worship of ancient times. This form of rite is called picnic, and many thousands kneel in the woodlands during spring summer, and into fall.

The warm ones seek pleasure first, last and always. Winter is so far away like "Jimmiey Cricket" the world owes them a living and there is no winter! When winter comes, and it will, the warm ones will find no refuge from the ice blue cold of nature's death. There is a death of the soul, and for the unprepared, the warm ones may well be the "hot ones!"

God expects us to worship Him in His House during the warm, nice, weather just as we did in the cold winter when we sat and soaked up so much heat.

Fun in the sun is great, let us not neglect our church attendance in the warm weather. As a child, I used to attempt to get out of going to church in the summer by saying "It's far too hot. My father, in a thick Scottish brogue would reply — "Son. It will be hotter in Hell." I went!

Conference Is Featured

A special coast-to-coast network of more than 165 TV stations will televise the General Conference of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints on Sunday.

Locally, the program will be seen on WRCV, Channel 3, at 10 a.m., as a public service.

Originating in the historic Mormon Tabernacle in Salt Lake City, the conference will include the music of the world, Choir and messages of counsel and inspiration from the general authorities of the church.

Presiding over this 134th annual conference will be David O. McKay, 90-year-old president and spiritual leader of over two million members assisted by his counselors Hugh B. Brown and N. Eldon Tanner.

Featured Speaker
The Rev. Elmer G. Meissner, is scheduled to speak on "Design For Living" over WYPO radio each weekday from 9:30 a.m. to 9:45 a.m. this week.

Small Proposes Office Addition

STROUDSBURG — Mayor Joseph H. Small has asked the Stroudsburg Borough Council to investigate the feasibility of building a $30,000 addition to the municipal building to house borough offices.

Easter Seal Campaign $1,200 Behind

STROUDSBURG — Mrs. Ruth E. Brown, chairman of Easter Seal Campaign in Monroe County, yesterday said $4,924 has been collected, but the drive is $1,200 lower than last year.

This was attributed to an early Easter this year, and to February being a short month.

"We believe that many people have just put off mailing their contributions. We urge them to mail them as soon as possible. Without funds we cannot assist the handicapped of Monroe County," Mrs. Brown said.

Authority was willing to spend $5,500 to relocate its present office on the second floor of the municipal building.

Small said as he understood the water authority's proposal, the authority would lend council the $5,500 to be used to renovate a large second-floor office in the municipal building.

Council would then repay the authority by providing rent-free offices until the $5,500 was used up as rental payment.

The mayor said that having the water authority on the second floor was not the best solution to the authority's need for more office space.

He said if council decided it was feasible to build a 70-foot, one-story addition to the north side of the present building the borough could offer office space to its other departments in addition to solving the water authority's need for more space.

The mayor said if the addition were built, it would be his intention to have such offices as the police department, tax collector, board of health and the water and sewer authority in the new section.

Small said he arrived at the $30,000 figure after consulting a professional architect.

Last night Robert Weichel, council president, refused to comment on either the water authority's or Small's alternate proposal.

Stroud Union Building Bids Total $1,340,816

STROUDSBURG — Low bids opened last night for a Stroud Union building and renovation program totalling $1,340,816.

The bids included the construction of a new junior high school, renovations to the present junior-senior high building and a new athletic stadium and field house.

The bids were opened at a joint meeting of the Stroudsburg Area School Authority and the Stroud Union School Board in the high school.

The bids will now be studied by the school district's architect, Rinker, Keiler and Rake of Stroudsburg. The authority and the school board will meet with a representative of the architectural firm Wednesday at 8 p.m. to hear the architect's recommendation and award contracts.

The apparent low bidder for the general construction phase of the project was Boyd H. Kline of Bloomsburg, with a base bid of $889,936.

In addition to the base bid the Bloomsburg firm submitted prices of $16,000 for moveable walls and $25,400 for new seats for the high school auditorium.

Other general construction bidders and their base bids were Picotelli Construction Co. of Old Forge, $925,000; Paul L. Edinger of Stroudsburg, $927,000; S. G. Mastriani Co. of Scranton, $961,800; H. E. Stoudt and Sons, Inc. of Allentown, $1,023,777, and Louis Hajdu of Allentown, $1,032,114.

Apparent low bidder on the plumbing and drainage and heating and ventilating phases of the work was Joseph Wright of Wilkes-Barre, with bids of $111,417 and $137,217, respectively.

William Donaweyer Co. of Allentown submitted the low bid of $161,796 for the project's electrical work.

Members of the joint commission are from the Boroughs of Bangor, East Bangor, Pen Argyl, Portland, Roseto and Wind Gap. Township members are Bushkill, Lower Mount Bethel, Plainfield, Upper Mount Bethel, and Washington.

The meeting will start at 6 p.m. and will be held on the second floor of the A-B-E Airport Terminal Building.

"All of us in the Slate Belt Area and vicinity have common problems and desires. This is the best opportunity ever afforded our municipalities to coordinate completely a master plan with the County of Northampton," Stauffer said.

Tempers Flare Over Taxes As 5 Of 8 Appeals Fail

STROUDSBURG — The Monroe County Commissioners heard eight tax appeals yesterday and denied five of them.

For the second day of appeals, tempers flared hot during some of the argument.

One person, after his appeal was denied, told the commissioners that "the politicians are making gangsters out of the honest people." He left the commissioners' room talking about Russia and Khrushchev.

Edward J. Kiss
The first appeal was brought by Edward J. Kiss of Stroudsburg, RD 5.

He said that he thought his house was assessed too high. He said it should be lowered because of the construction and the aluminum siding on the house.

The assessors — C. A. Nauman, chief assessor, Robert Stem and Kenneth Erickson — said that the house was originally assessed at $12,000 because it was not completed.

Nauman said that when the house was completed the assessment went to $14,000; when an enclosed porch was put on, the value of the house was upped to $15,061.

"The total assessment of house and land is $16,361," Nauman said, "when you paid $16,500 for the total property. We have the place assessed for less than you paid for it, even though you have improved the property since then."

The appeal was denied.

James Wood
James Wood of 1106 Harding Drive, Upper Darby, Pa., brought the next appeal. He said that he had no road to his property in Pocono Summit and that he actually had less land than his deed shows.

Nauman said, "We have your lots assessed at $150 and $50; this is the lowest possible assessment."

"Well, you raised my assessment, didn't you?" Wood asked Nauman.

"No, we lowered it," Nauman said.

Nauman added that a house with fireplace on the Wood property was valued at $791 fair market price.

"I don't know how any house with a fireplace can be assessed lower than that," solicitor Russell Mervine said.

Nauman noted that Wood's total tax bill for the year for the property came to $24.50 under current mills.

Mrs. Burton H. Keiper
Mrs. Burton H. Keiper appealed the assessment on her house in Long Pond. She said it was too high. The house had been assessed at $8,522.

After a discussion of the age and condition of the house, the assessors agreed that an extra 5 per cent depreciation would bring the house to fair value.

"The value of the house was thus reduced to $7,900,"

Ernest Bartleson
Ernest Bartleson of 22 Elm St., East Stroudsburg, appealed the assessment of $5,040 on his house.

It was brought out that Bartleson had paid $5,000 for the house in February, 1963, and had since put in $170 in improvements.

"We feel this is right in line with its true worth," commissioner Stanley B. Rader said.

Solicitor Mervine asked Bartleson if he thought the house was worth $5,040.

"No," Bartleson said. Mervine then said that since he had paid $5,000 and put in $170 improvements, $5,040 was probably the true worth of the house.

The appeal was denied.

Carl Merkel
Carl Merkel of 487 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, said, "I feel that my garage has been assessed twice."

The assessors brought out that the garage was 21 by 26 feet. It has been assessed at $1,300.

"It cost me $1,200 to build and I used my own labor," Merkel said. "My own labor doesn't count."

"Yes it does," said solicitor Mervine. "You must figure the total worth of the building, whether you built it by hand, whether it was given to you free, or whether you had a contractor build it."

The assessors noted that the whole property was valued at $11,738.

"I tried to sell it three times for $8,000 and nobody would buy it," Merkel said.

He added that he didn't think his assessment was in line with nearby properties.

The assessors then checked nearby properties of similar types and found assessments almost equal to Merkel's. It was noted that Merkel had a full concrete floor in his basement and a bay window where the other property discussed had no such window and only 50 per cent of the floor in the cellar concrete.

"If you put that garage on the assessment rolls you're going to have a hell of an explosion in the neighborhood," Merkel said.

"The politicians are making gangsters out of the honest people," he added.

The appeal was denied and Merkel was instructed that he had a choice of appeal to the courts.

Harry and Robert Ahnert
Harry and Robert Ahnert of the Fernwood in Bushkill told the board that in 1963 one of their buildings was assessed at $74,239. They said it was later reduced to $53,396 because of a wrong classification.

They also said that they had paid taxes on the $74,239, and asked for a rebate for the tax overage. The board agreed to refund the extra money.

Cloyd P. Miller
Cloyd P. Miller of Pocono Pines told the board that the state was planning to build a highway 11 feet from his front doorstep.

Upon checking with state maps, this was found to be true. The paved part of the road would be 23 feet from his steps.

He asked the board to lower his assessment because of the reduced value of the property with the close proximity of the road.

The board reduced the assessment on Miller's house from $11,100 to $9,160 and on the land from $2,295 to $1,295.

Miss Norma I. Gamble
Miss Norma I. Gamble of 725 Cinnaminson St., Philadelphia, asked the board why her assessment was increased on property she owns on Hemlock Lake.

Nauman said that her property had been assessed according to the rules for assessment, and that it was in line with other properties in the area.

Miss Gamble maintained that she had originally paid only $950 for two lots, but that she pays more taxes than $950 would indicate.

Nauman told her that land values around Hemlock Lake had gone up, and that her purchase price wouldn't affect the current value of the land.

The appeal was denied.

The board said it would hear tax appeals from local camps April 23 and 24.

To:—Republican Voters of Barrett Township

From:—Robert "Pete" Quinn

Barrett Township
April 2nd 1964

Good Day to You,

May I introduce myself? I am Robert D. Quinn. Many of you know me best as "Pete". My Mother chose Robert but as things do happen, it is "Pete" that I am called today.

My Family and I live in our own home in Canadensis. My wife was Joyce Paul from McKeesburg, Schuylkill County, Penna. before she became Mrs. Robt. Quinn. Our son, Bobby is six years old and attends the Barrett Elementary Center. We are members of the Canadensis Methodist Church. The Buck Hill Falls Co. has employed me for twelve years. I am a member of the Volunteer Ambulance Corps and the Volunteer Fire Co. Am interested in Civil Defense and have had practical training in Light Rescue work. Recently I was nominated to the Commission of Character and Social Concerns of our Church.

I respectfully ask for your vote to elect me as your Republican Committeeman from Barrett Township. Actively interested in Republican affairs for years, now I feel that I can be of service to you, the Township and the Party by my working as the elected Committeeman.

If you choose now, I shall attempt the following:

To promote the organizing of a Barrett Men's Republican Club.

To regularly schedule open meetings to afford an opportunity for the exchange of Republican ideas.

To encourage all qualified persons to become candidates in Primary Elections thereby giving the voters an active part in choosing their Candidates.

To work for a unified, energetic spirit of vital purpose among Party Members.

I shall be grateful for your consideration and most appreciative of your support and votes.

Tax Appeals

It might save many people a lot of time and effort if they checked the facts on tax appeals.

The county commissioners have noted that too often, people appeal their tax assessments without a leg to stand on (Story on page 3).

By misunderstanding the procedure, some heap vilification upon the commissioners and the assessors, as they did Friday.

This kind of abuse should not be hurled at men who are not at fault.

Assessments are levied on all taxable property on the basis of fair market value. It makes no difference whether the property was given to the taxpayer, or whether he built a structure from second-hand materials, or used his own labor.

The finished and improved property is judged on what it would bring on the open market.

Some people claim they are being penalized for improving their property—the more improvements, the more the property is worth, and thus, the more taxes have to be paid.

But this is the law of the state. It is not the commissioners' right to break this law.

When the assessors do their work, they have a complete set of rules and guides to follow—for instance, so many square feet of a frame house are assessed at X number of dollars for everyone; cleared property in a certain area is assessed at Z number of dollars for everyone in the area.

Many people think that a tax appeal hearing is a place to gripe about high taxes.

The tax rate is set by the county, by the municipality, and by the school.

The rate says that the taxpayer will pay so many dollars on each thousand dollars assessment on property he owns.

The value of the property is set by the assessors.

Thus, while the tax rate and the assessed value are interrelated, they are not synonymous.

The tax appeal should only be used when a property is over, or undervalued. The value is determined by guidebooks. While assessors may make mistakes, appeals on values reached by using the guidebooks will usually be denied.

In other words, unless the assessors did not follow the rules and guides, a tax appeal is usually doomed before it begins.

Many people do not understand that fair market value and assessed value are not the same.

If the property is valued at $1,000, the taxpayer pays tax upon 35 per cent, or $350, in Monroe County. If the tax is one mill, he pays 35 cents.

This 35 per cent is the assessment percentage; in some counties it is as high as 65 per cent.

The assessment guidebooks are based upon market values of a few years ago; while they are consistent for the county, they are usually too low.

Before making a tax appeal, citizens should realize that the board may decide to increase the assessment instead of decrease it, if the property is valued too low.

In other words, have a leg to stand on.

Comment Of The Day

"The vast majority of our students are white, Aryan, Protestant, wealthy and Republican."

"They have been living in a tradition of narrow-mindedness and bigotry."

They are still the most inbred, isolated beings imaginable in the North."

Walter Lippmann

Angry Red Feud

By Walter Lippmann

The angry feud between Mao and Khrushchev is no doubt in some measure an ideological quarrel about how to achieve and to organize a Communist state. But surely it is not a mere theoretical quarrel. Rather it is an historical conflict between the Russian empire and the Chinese.

There are two great issues shrouded in the Marxist-Leninist jargon. One is the long disputed land frontier which was imposed by czarist Russia on the decaying Chinese empire. There is in all the world no more dangerous frontier than this one which runs from the Pacific to the Middle East.

The other deep issue is the rivalry for power and influence in what is convenient to call "the third world" — the world, one might say, of the non-powers, the former colonial regions of Asia and Africa and Latin America.

The future of the third world is, more and more, the pre-occupation also of the western non-Communist countries. That is why we are so much concerned about South Viet Nam, about Cuba, about Africa south of the Sahara, about Brazil. We have come to realize that the greatest revolution of this revolutionary century is the revolution of the depressed and backward peoples of the old colonial dominions, the lands which the British, the French, the Spanish, the Portuguese and the Dutch conquered during the past 450 years.

ence in what is convenient to call "the third world" — the world, one might say, of the non-powers, the former colonial regions of Asia and Africa and Latin America.

The future of the third world is, more and more, the pre-occupation also of the western non-Communist countries. That is why we are so much concerned about South Viet Nam, about Cuba, about Africa south of the Sahara, about Brazil. We have come to realize that the greatest revolution of this revolutionary century is the revolution of the depressed and backward peoples of the old colonial dominions, the lands which the British, the French, the Spanish, the Portuguese and the Dutch conquered during the past 450 years.

The questions which are being tested in all parts of the third world are how the goals of independence and economic welfare can be reached. Is it to be by the methods of Soviet Russia, of Red China, of American free enterprise or of the European planned economies?

It is safe to say that no one of these competing systems will prevail everywhere over all the others. One of the delusions, or as Sen, J. W. Fulbright would say, one of the "myths," of primitive thinkers — such as the Red Chinese and perhaps some who are nearer home — is that there can be only one universally right social system in this conglomerated and heterogeneous world.

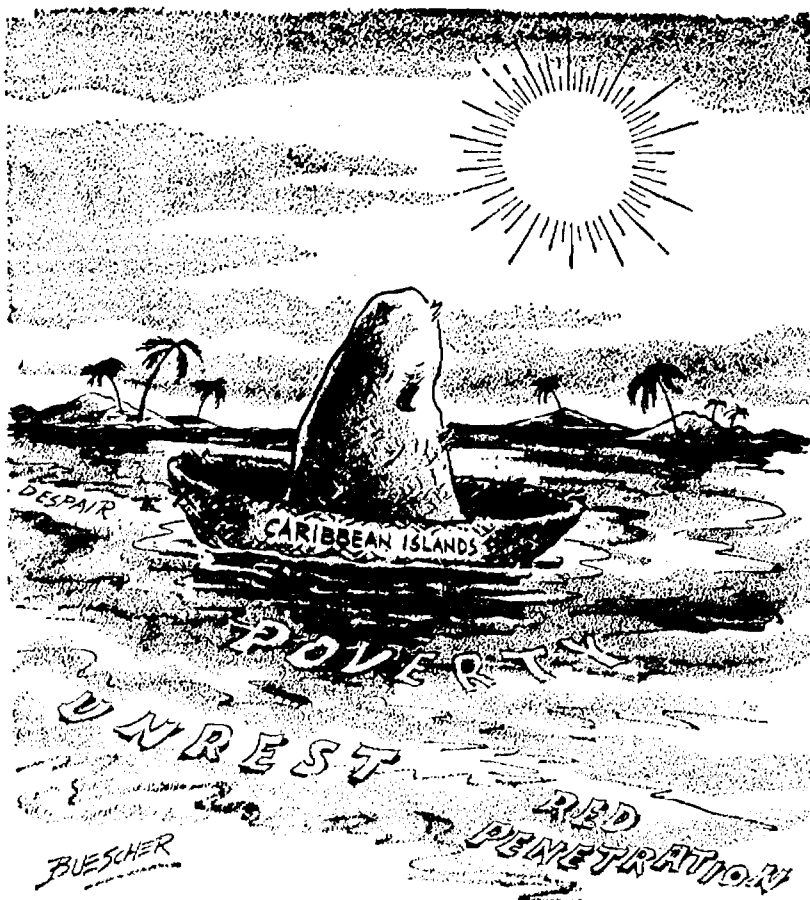

Thus, the Russians have been learning in recent years that, as their industrial system becomes more highly developed, it becomes less possible to manage it efficiently by decree from Moscow. The current Chinese system applied to a highly developed society like that of Sweden, Belgium or the United States would produce chaos and famine.

By the same token, it is quite impossible to make our system, which works so well in Michigan and California, work equally well in Brazil and Chile, much less in the Congo or Zanzibar.

This is one of the reasons why we should encourage, not fear and reject, competing foreign aid programs in the third world. For one thing, we cannot and will not provide all the foreign aid that the third world needs. For another, even if we had the money and the willingness to give it, even if we had all the power and influence necessary to make it accepted, we do not know enough to guide the development of the third world.

When I say that we do not know enough, I mean that the State Department and the Congress and the comparatively few well-informed citizens who pay attention to these matters do not know enough. They cannot know enough. For what is being forged on the anvil of history is the social order of a hundred nations, almost all of them exceedingly unlike the United States. All of them with a very different geography and a very different history.

So we should welcome, as President Kennedy did when he was in Paris in 1961, the expanding influence of France in Latin America.

Editor's Note: Did you ever wonder how a front page story is born... how many changes it undergoes before you read it... how many transitional periods it flips through... how many times the story contradicts itself... then is bounced around so it becomes a cohesive whole as you can read it with your morning coffee?

A story is really "alive" as we newspapermen say. Let's take a look at how the Brazilian revolution developed Wednesday night.

It was a quiet Wednesday afternoon at the Daily Record. General MacArthur's medical reports were so pessimistic that there wasn't a reporter in the editorial room who thought the "old soldier" would last the night.

Mao Fights On So in the super-cynical world of newsmen, Gen. MacArthur's obituary was immediately set up in type so his background would be prepared if a late story announced his death.

After all, a death can be reported in about four paragraphs. But a career like MacArthur's could take 100 paragraphs.

Nevertheless, as a news editor, I thought the top story of the day would be General MacArthur's death.

Of course, if he didn't die, we would always play up the stories of the Alaskan earthquake — one of the best stories of the year, but by then getting stale for many readers because the quake was almost one week old.

Every newspaperman, before he makes the final decision whether to play a story — give it the most prominence — always has in the back of his mind a suspicion another, better, more important story will come along.

That's what happened Thursday afternoon when the Associated Press teletype that monster with clacking noises — started coughing up hell alarms.

Top Story So about 4 p.m., the page one lead — top story — began to form in newsrooms across the country.

News editors watched for the stories that began with a Rio de Janeiro dateline — site from which the Brazilian story was emanating.

Here's how the revolution was flashed to the Daily Record shortly after 4 p.m.:

"Three generals who led the revolution against Joao Goulart announced Wednesday night they would confer the presidency on Ranieri Mazzilli, president of the Chamber of Deputies."

So I knew we had a story. But from that terse announcement many unanswered questions concerned me.

Who were the generals? Red, like Castro? Pro-American like Bentancourt? Is the revolution over? Were many killed? Did Goulart really give up?

While reporters in Brazil frantically began to dig out the facts from the turmoil of a nation in revolution, I sat in the comfortable calm of the Record's newsrooms speculating on what questions had to be answered.

But the wire — the AP teletype — doesn't stop with one story, so with the characteristic bias attitude of the filer — the man sending the stories — the machine went into its cycle of delivering the stock report, early baseball scores, Khrushchev's digs at Peking, nude models complaining their apartment wasn't warm enough and a host of other stories.

Rebel Chabins Then before dinner, came more on the Brazilian revolution.

"The bulletin" read in part "... rebel radio stations declared that Goulart had resigned."

Here's a problem I had to watch for. "Rebel radio stations announced..." This is not an authoritative and unbiased source. The radio commentators could be all keyed up and announcing "wishful thinking."

They may have erroneous reports too.

So I knew that the story would develop further. Before seven o'clock another bulletin was sent. It read,

"Rio de Janeiro — Joao Goulart has resigned as president, the War Ministry's press office announced..."

Well, at least the title of the sources — War Ministry Office — is getting more authoritative, but then again you never know.

The story began to sink a little. Goulart is a colorful character and I thought he'd do more than quickly resign.

Reporters on the Brazilian revolt now felt they had adequate information to write a more comprehensive story. So they wrote a story, about 10 paragraphs, incorporating earlier bulletins and background material.

The first sentence read "The war ministry announced Wednesday that President Goulart resigned on the onslaught of a massive political-military revolt against his leftist regime..." There are unconfirmed reports that Goulart, who had been in power since 1961 has left the country...

At least there was an indication the rebels were anti-Red.

Then the teletype machine concentrated on other stories. I knew as soon as the writers had time, they'd refine the first attempt.

Still Fighting And it didn't take long. One half hour later the complexion of the story changed again. The Associated Press reported from Brasilia "President Joao Goulart is still in Brazil and will resist the revolution from this inland capital with the help of elements of the Third Army, his chief civilian aid announced."

The rebel forces at this time were unconcerned about Goulart. The next stories dealt with huge victory celebrations in Rio, and stirring radio reports from Sao Paulo proclaiming that Brazil was "saved from becoming another Cuba."

Was the report on Goulart in Brasilia accurate?

Thirty minutes later the rebels lent credence to the report and a bulletin from Rio read "Rebel military authorities Wednesday night announced they are sending troops to Brasilia, where President Goulart has announced he will make a last ditch stand to save his government."

Story Goes Out This information became part of the whole story and at 20 minutes to midnight, it was sent to the composing room where it would be processed for page one.

Three times, printers were halted from work on the story. There was a paragraph to change on Goulart's left-leaning background. Another report concerned the people in the Brazilian provinces. Another again changed the facts of the story.

Goulart was not in Brasilia. He was heading south. But that was it. The Record was crowding deadline. The paper had to go to bed.

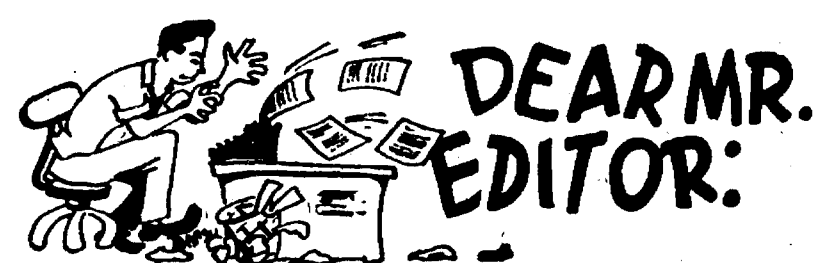

How to Spell That was the end of the story as far as I was concerned.

I looked at the teletype at 1:30 a.m. and there was another story on the revolution. It read:

"Editors: Rio de Janeiro advises us that the revolutionaries' president — designate — spells his last name M-a-z-z-i-l-l-i with two l's and two z's instead of one."

It was too late to change now.

Oh, MacArthur? He lived through Wednesday. The obituary was saved.

Eyesore Admitted, But Cleanup Of Poconos Will Take Time

Editor, The Daily Record:

It has taken several days to settle down to one serious emotion regarding Monday's photograph of our dilapidated "tourist attraction."

Naturally first reactions were varying degrees of anger, and wonder at why us — why not others too, such as a disreputable junk yard in the next block and the sad hot dog stands the road is dotted with, all the way to Scranton.

And what about the countless bars along the route, with many an attraction for children.

And, thought I, how few children have ever gone from our place without having had at least an interesting time; some even a merry time. Petting live cubs, holding rabbits and listening to a real Arctic explorer whose books they later can read in the Public Library, must be reasons enough to overlook the tilted signs and dilapidated buildings.

After my anger passed I could think with good, sound sense and it was then I realized you are right about the eyesore.

I have never been happy about the appearance of the place any more than the countless people who ask me each year, "When do we get to the mountains," and I tell them, "you are in the mountains." I am as disappointed in it as they are.

Of course I point to Big Pocono which is lovely and sometimes satisfies those who just must see a peak; and I guess

I have thought only of my nice fat animals that I personally feed each day, and haven't given enough thought to our front.

We can assure you and those who are equally offended, that we certainly hope to gradually improve our place. We do not want to abandon our hope to have a pleasant place for children; we have been approached by people with large offers for the valuable stretch but to date haven't approved of their projects; enough of grog shops, we say.

Needless to say, we barely make hay money for our llamas, deer and burros. And come see how fat they are! I believe everyone will concede that you are right about signs, eyesores and junk yards. Rome was not built in a day, and in time you will no doubt find the scenery to your liking. But you must remember that it cannot be done quickly. Can you imagine the Anadolink used car lot moving that many cars in a hurry?

Frankly I believe theirs to be an extremely neat arranging of used-up cars. Perhaps a more tactful suggestion for an over-all clean-up would have been wiser.

I am sure that leaning bedsteads passing for antiques, aren't pretty, nor are piled up old stoves and refrigerators, especially when showing from the highway. But a gentle reminder in the newspaper every week might work the wonders hoped for.

Sign, Junk Yard Editorial

Editor, The Daily Record:

As an advertiser in your paper, it has been brought to our attention by some of our resort customers that your editorial in Monday, March 30, on page 7 was discriminatory in that it only mentioned resort signs and junk yards.

Their feeling was that there are other signs in the picture. Also, their contribution to the area's economy makes this advertising a necessity.

Billboard, Junkyard Page Commended

Editor, The Daily Record:

I am writing to commend you on your editorial and pictorial attack upon the number of billboards, junkyards, and littered areas that mar the beauty of the Pocono Mountain region.

Your excellent photography ably pointed out the predominance of this factor in our community. I especially appreciated the photo of the automobile junkyard on Route 196 across from Pinebrook.

I am in agreement that if we are to maintain pride in the Pocono Mountain area we must eliminate that which would detract from the natural and man-made beauty of our environment.

Such editorial features are in the best interest of the community, and should be continued.

County Aid For Resorts Opposed

Editor, The Daily Record:

In regard to all this publicity of advertising Monroe County as a resort area and having our county footing bill for same, I think it's about time these resorts pay their own advertising bills.

And as far as helping people in the county and nation, most of materials, groceries, meats and other supplies they use are purchased out of Monroe County and as far as paying a minimum wage, they should not be exempted any more than anybody else because help that works for them must pay as much for commodities as anyone else.

As a taxpayer and a resident of Monroe County, I think our tax money can be spent for other things that are needed.

Also, if they want the airport at Mt. Pocono, let the ones that benefit pay the bill and don't ask the other taxpayers to give to something that they derive no benefit from.

I am referring to the hotels and businesses of the mountain that derive the benefit from the airport.

I think the resort areas in the mountains have gotten enough support from the state and our county.

It is about time now that they pay their own advertising bills and don't ask for any more handouts.

shock us, for you forewarned us in a March 12 editorial. "Labor union leaders and Democrats have offered some valid criticisms of the bill, but in the main their arguments have been partisan and emotional appeals."

Unemployment compensation was designed in 1937 to help regular workers who are temporarily unemployed, not the chronically unemployed.

The role of General Assemblyman was created so that citizens in a prescribed area could receive representation on the state level.

Labor unions were organized to assist the "working people."

And, unemployment compensation, General Assemblymen and Labor Unions are here to help ALL of us — regardless of race, creed, color or... politics!

And if that statement comes as a shock to some people, I am really not very sorry.

Non-Smokers Corner

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My beds aren't made yet and my dishes are still in the sink but I must sit down and get this off my chest. Ah, this balcony about lung cancer has fallen flat. People will go right on smoking on the chance that it might not hit them. But I know something that is true of everyone who smokes that should convince people to quit. Now I've been to college and I realize this doesn't sound very polite, but I am going to say it in plain language. SMOKERS STINK! Their clothes, their hair, their skin and their breath just plain smell bad. All the money spent on perfume and deodorants is wasted. Most smokers don't notice it on themselves, but it bothers everyone within two feet of them. If you are a heavy smoker, the next time you go to kiss your child, or grandchild, ask him how he likes it. He will tell you the truth.

Sincerely,

DEAR ABBY: After reading the mailman's complaint that the women on his route wouldn't leave him alone, and then the young meter reader who said that most of the housewives had designs on him, I began to wonder what mailmen and meter readers had that carpenters don't have. I have worked inside and outside of houses for 30 years, and I have dealt with the lady of the house, directly, and I never once had this problem. Should I be insulted?

CARPENTER

DEAR CARPENTER: No. Maybe nobody else had had it, either.

DEAR ABBY: Maybe times have changed since I was a meter reader 25 years ago, but I was told that if I could not safely reach the meter to read it (vicious dogs or half-clad women) I should report it to the company, and they would send an estimated bill.

From Sports Illustrated:

The first four rows of seats for the Lister-Clay fight in Miami Beach's Convention Hall are known as the Golden Circle. Seats cost $250 each and are sold, says Promoter Bill MacDonald, "to distinguished sportsmen only."

How does a person qualify? "It's easy," says one buyer. "You go to the ticket seller's window and say, 'I want one of those Golden Circle seats.' The seller then asks, 'Are you a distinguished sportsman?' Here's the $250," you say. "You are indeed a distinguished sportsman," the seller says. "Here is your ticket."

Text Of Judge Davis' Opinion In Frantz-School Board Case

(This is the text of the opinion and decree of Monroe County Court Judge Fred W. Davis in the case of Frantz vs. Stroud Union School Board. See story Page 1.)

Frederick L. Frantz, the minor plaintiff, was a student at the Stroud Union High School, interested in varsity athletics, particularly baseball, when he was married on Dec. 8, 1962, at age 16.

He had been a member of the varsity baseball and football teams during his high school career and won his "letter" in both sports each year.

On Dec. 18, 1963, the Board of School Directors of Stroud Union School District, defendant herein, passed a resolution providing:

"That married students attending high school be permitted to attend classes to earn credits for graduation but that they be denied the privilege of participating in activities in which there is any public performance involved or in which the students act in the name of the school."

Subsequently, on or about officially notified by the principal of the Stroud Union High School that by virtue of the aforesaid resolution he would not be permitted to play on the varsity baseball team during the Spring of 1964, the year of his contemplated graduation.

On the 11th day of February, 1964, this action in equity was instituted to restrain the said Stroud Union School District from preventing him from playing baseball because of the aforesaid marriage.

Frantz Allegations
Plaintiff predicates his contention that the said resolution is invalid on several grounds.

1. Said resolution constitutes an arbitrary and capricious exercise of authority.

2. Said resolution is unconstitutional as applied to the minor plaintiff in that it constitutes ex post facto legislation, and impairment of liberty without due process and is retrospective legislation which impairs a vested statutory right to full and complete education.

3. Said resolution is contrary to public policy.

4. If the said resolution is valid it should not apply to the plaintiff under the facts established by the testimony.

The power of the defendant School Board to adopt the challenged regulation is derived from the Act of March 10, 1949, P. L. 30, Art. V, Sec. 5-11, as amended, 24 P. S. Sec. 5-11, which reads in part:

(a) The board of school directors in every school district shall prescribe, adopt, and enforce such reasonable rules and regulations as it may deem proper, regarding (1) the management, supervision, control, or prohibition of exercises, athletics, or games of any kind, school publications, debating, forensic, dramatic, musical, and other activities related to the school program.

Counsel has not cited, nor have we found, any Pennsylvania decisions involving the right of a school board to prohibit participation by a student in interscholastic athletics for the sole reason that he or she has contracted marriage.

However, our own appellate courts have clearly set forth the powers of a school board concerning matters committed by law to its discretion.

In the case of Farris v. Swetts, et al. 138 Pa. Superior Court, 645, 648, the Court said:

Broad Board Powers

"We recognize that when one attacks the action of a school board concerning matters committed by law to its discretion, he has a heavy burden as the courts are not prone to disturb a school board's decision."

"Indeed, they are without jurisdiction to interfere therewith unless it is apparent that the school board's conduct is arbitrary, capricious and to the prejudice of public interest. Lack of wisdom or mistaken judgment is insufficient."

Counsel for plaintiff contends that because the school board in this instance did not officially investigate the exact situation, did not appoint an investigating committee, did not consult the parent and teachers association and the like, that its action was obviously arbitrary and capricious.

We do not so view the situation. Plaintiff presented no direct evidence to show that the school directors did not know the effects caused by the marriage of a high school student.

As a matter of fact, in many respects the effects are a matter of common knowledge.

Until otherwise shown, a school director is entitled to be credited with knowledge commensurate with his responsibility in that official position.

Similar Decisions

The reason already discussed, as well as, the reasons set forth under headings 2 and 3 are discussed and considered in Kissick v. Garland Independent School District, 330 S. W. 2d 708 (Ct. of Civ. Ap., Texas, 1959);

Cochrane v. Board of Education of Mesick Consolidated School District, 103 N. W. 2d 569 (Mich., 1960); Starkey v. Board of Education of Davis County School District, 381 P. 2d 718 (Utah, 1963), all appellate court cases, and State, ex rel. Baker v. Stevenson, 188 N. W. 2d 181 (C. P., Ohio, 1962), a common pleas court decision.

All of these cases sustained the school board in its action, which was relatively similar to the case under consideration.

Since this opinion involves only a special injunction, we shall not go into a discussion of these matters at this time. It suffices to say that we agree with the action of the said courts in sustaining the said school boards.

School Notified
We now come to a consideration of the last question, whether under the facts established by the testimony, the minor plaintiff in this action should be exempted from the effects of the said resolution.

The testimony establishes that the minor plaintiff and his father called on the principal of the high school a short time before the marriage took place, Dec. 8, 1962, and inquired whether the plaintiff would be able to continue in athletics after the marriage.

The principal explained to both the plaintiff and his father that he would recommend to the superintendent of schools that the plaintiff would not be permitted to participate in athletics and that if the superintendent sustained his point of view he would inform them sometime during the Christmas vacation.

The plaintiff heard nothing further from the principal or from any school authority in relation to this matter until after the passage of the resolution in question, Dec. 18, 1963.

Meanwhile, he played a full season on the varsity baseball team and the varsity football team.

It was not until January, 1964, that he was notified that he could not play on the varsity baseball team.

The minor plaintiff was a member and "letter" recipient of the first string varsity football team during his freshman, sophomore, junior and senior years, and also a first string and "letter" recipient of the varsity baseball team during his freshman, sophomore and junior years.

Plaintiff testified that after furthering his education at East Stroudsburg State College, in physical education he desired to make baseball his career.

Baseball Important
That baseball is extremely important to this young man is clearly demonstrated.

The Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic Association rules and regulations provide that a student may not move from one school district to another for the purpose of engaging in athletics.

All of the public schools in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, except the Philadelphia public schools, are members of this association.

Thus, it is clear that if this young man does not play baseball at the Stroud Union High School he cannot play baseball in any other public school system in Pennsylvania this Spring.

Plaintiff testified that during the past Summer he, with his wife, lived with his wife's mother in Northampton County, Pennsylvania, and he played baseball in twenty games for the Northampton Team in the Lehigh-Northampton American Legion Baseball League.

He further testified that if he had known he could not play baseball at Stroud Union High he could have established a residence with his wife's mother in Northampton County and been eligible to play baseball in a high school in said county, which does not have the restriction on married students.

That, as a matter of fact, he had been solicited to play football at one of the high schools in Northampton County.

If the plaintiff had not inquired of the school authorities in regard to his status, as hereinafore set forth, we would feel that he had taken his chances and lost and could not legally complain.

But, the school authorities having impliedly told him that he could play varsity athletics and allowed him to play varsity athletics in the Spring and Fall of last year, in our opinion were in no proper position to deprive him of the opportunity to play baseball in the Spring of 1964, at a time when he was thereby also deprived of the opportunity to seek an opportunity to engage in the sport elsewhere.

Allows Frantz To Play
We do not believe that the court of equity should countenance such a situation, and therefore, shall enter a decree restraining the school district from precluding this plaintiff from playing baseball this Spring because of the fact that he is married.

(Several paragraphs are here deleted.)

We conclude that the Board of School Directors' delay of over one year in taking action to prevent the plaintiff's participation in varsity sports after inquiry was made constitutes laches and by reason of this, and by reason of the Board of School Directors' representation that his marriage would not prevent his athletic activities and allowing him to engage in varsity sports in the Spring and Fall of 1963, puts the school district in a position where it is estopped from preventing him from playing in the Spring of 1964.

(The judge cited a court definition of "laches" as "an equitable doctrine which is not applied merely by the passage of time but only when the delay works to the disadvantage or injury of the party invoking the doctrine.")

Although final hearing has been held, a complete and final adjudication in this matter at this time is impractical. The Spring baseball season is now upon us.

The time required to pass upon 111 requests for findings of fact and 28 requests for conclusions of law and the writing of a full adjudication would make the question moot before the decision was rendered.

Therefore, we shall enter a special injunction. However, if it appears necessary or advisable, a full and complete adjudication will be filed later.

Decree
And now, April 3, 1964, it is ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

1. That a special injunction shall issue enjoining the Board of School Directors of Stroud Union School District, its officers, servants and agents, from precluding Frederick L. Frantz, minor plaintiff, from fully participating on the Stroud Union High School interscholastic baseball team during the Spring season of 1964, because of the fact that he is married.

2. That this injunction is to take effect upon plaintiff's entering an injunction bond approved by the court in the sum of One Hundred Dollars ($100.00).

By the Court,

THE Twenty-Third PSALM

You've got to have your arms around a warm, woolly, wobbly lamb before the real meaning of the Twenty-third Psalm grips you.

You begin to realize how awkward, bewildered, helpless a lamb really is.

David wasn't merely singing of the Lord's faithfulness. He was confessing his own helplessness!

The key to religious faith is not simply the discovery of God's power. It is the discovery of our own need.

The Lord is OUR Shepherd.

- 1 The Lord is my shepherd, I shall not want;
- 2 he makes me lie down in green pastures. He leads me beside still waters;
- 3 he restores my soul. He leads me in paths of righteousness for his name's sake.
- 4 Even though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.

5 Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of my enemies; thou anointest my head with oil, my cup overflows.

6 Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It's been a big week for the newlyweds arriving for a brief visit with grandparents on Friday, not to mention April Fool in between, which sort of got me off the track of telling you about the wedding.

It was visible proof that it is possible to set the date, have the bride's dress and bridesmaids dresses made, rally the family from far and near and have a beautiful wedding, all within two weeks. With a chance for a month's honeymoon in Maine, it seemed silly to sacrifice it for a traditional June wedding so the arrangements had to be speeded up like a moving picture run at double speed.

But on the day of the wedding, things were serene as if everything hadn't been rushing at breakneck speed. Of course, a considerable amount of strain was avoided by inviting only the family to the church. The "only" is a comparative term since both families are large, and are both close in spirit and wide - spread by geography, but about 25 of us made it.

But since it was family, it didn't matter if the bride's two-year-old sister started singing happy birthday at the sight of all the candles, in the church, and had to be retrieved periodically from what seemed a better vantage point.

It was close and warm and lovely, and afterward everybody was quite in the mood to share in the excitement of a big reception with most of Pennsylvania's distinguished faculty there. Everybody except the mammoth French poodle, Triestram Sandy, who had been sent to the kennels to be clipped, and will never forgive them, I'm sure, for marrying off one of the family without him.

The Baby's Named!

Jeffrey Jack Crawford — Mr. and Mrs. Jack Crawford of 191 North Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, announce the birth of their second son on March 27 at the General Hospital. He weighed 8 pounds and has been named Jeffrey Jack. His brothers, James Jay is 2½ years old.

WISHING WELL

Registered U. S. Patent Office.

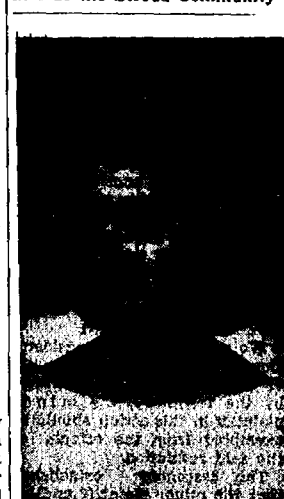

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 4 or more, subtract 1. If the number is less than 4, add the result to your last number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

THE WYCKOFF SHOPPER

Followers of "Dear Abby" may recall her column of a few days ago in which a correspondent asked her opinion of a man who lacked courage to speak for himself, and tweaked his ear or used some other signal to tell his wife when he wished to leave a social gathering and go home. Abby's reply was that she thought such rapporte between husband and wife quite remarkable, and hadn't been aware that it existed today.

This business of communicating with one another is a very interesting subject, come to think of it. In Victorian days, lovers communicated in the language of the flowers. And at a certain period in our national life great importance was attached to the manner in which a stamp was affixed to a letter. If it were upside down it meant one thing; if it were sideways it meant still another. The least desirable way of posting a letter of romantic nature was to have the stamp right side-up, as its designer intended.

Through the years our modern youngsters have communicated in dozens of ways . . . through audible, hastily-rattled off "pig latin," through symbols, and the titles of songs. And also, by the way they wore their scarves, shoe laces, or other accessories. Now it is socks that convey messages. Just arrived in our Hosiery Department at Wyckoff's are fluffy orlon "Sig" socks, priced at 1.29. On the side are signal corps pennants. Three pennants convey the message, "Yes . . . I am going steady." Two relate the sorry tale, "No . . . I am not going steady." Apparently a "clock" on your sock is the newest, preferred way of wearing one's heart on one's sleeve.

Looking rugged and tanned, Ernest Cron came into our Wyckoff store the other day to see the European art and the abstracts I had described in a Shopper column. He and Ruth have had a delightful winter in Florida, where he found a ready market for his paintings. He has brought back some of his street scenes, and wonders whether or not they will mean anything to local art lovers. "Seeing them down there, when you are looking for a memento of a happy Southern visit is different from seeing them here when you have never been South and don't know the scene," he said.

This brings up the question of why people purchase paintings . . . or even reproductions. My personal feeling is that they buy because the composition and coloring are pleasing to their eye, rather than because they recognize the landscape and have memories concerning it that are pleasant.

Mr. Cron, who has made an art of framing pictures, agrees with me that the European paintings are framed to perfection, and that a frame can make or break a work of art. I have been appalled many times when our Wyckoff Art Show was being hung, to see the slipshod way many artists frame their work . . . almost as though the frame were a reluctant afterthought. The result was that the impact of the work itself was lost, and paintings of far less artistic quality, beautifully framed, won the ribbons.

NEW . . . and at WYCKOFF'S, naturally, are the silver compotes with colorful enameled lining that serve a triple purpose. As they stand, they are elegant serving dishes for nuts or candy. When unscrewed from their bases, they form ash trays, and the bases become smartly styled candlesticks. These retail in our Jewelry Department at 15.00 a pair, and are tarnish-proof. Small ash trays or coasters to match, boxed in sets of four, are 6.50. Make a note of these as possible gifts for the June brides on your list.

Honors List Announced For Home Decoration Awards

By VIVIAN BROWN
New York (AP) — People who pamper palace and other great homes are cited for inspiring good design in their environment and influencing public taste in the first honor list for distinguished decoration of the National Society of Interior Designers.

Because Mrs. John F. Kennedy is in mourning there are 9 names, instead of 10 on the list. She would have headed it, says Arturo di Pini San Miniato, president of the society.

The nine include:
Mrs. William Paley, whose Manhattan home combines 18th century English and French antiques, contemporary furnishings and impressionist paintings.

Mrs. Charles B. Wrightsman of Palm Beach Fla., whose home is an 18th century masterpiece of design. She collects porcelains and French wall paneling. Her bibelots are treasures, and through her inspiration the Metropolitan Museum of Art has acquired great 18th century French furnishings — boiseries, parquet and porcelains.

The Duchess of Windsor, for her understanding of composition and flair in French town and country houses, her influence on taste and are and her attention to detail in decoration and in gracious living.

Henry Francis du Pont of Wilmington, Del., who has made a museum of the best of American taste and style at Winterthur, where more than 100 rooms are furnished with objects of American heritage in a fabulous restoration project.

American-born Mrs. Jacques Balsan, the former Consuelo Vanderbilt, who has taken on mammoth tasks of refurbishing the interiors of her great homes on Fifth Avenue and the Riviera, and in Newport, London, Normandy, Palm Beach and elsewhere. Her affinity for taste and color permits her to combine many patterns in fabric, lamp bases, rugs and furniture with superb effects.

Countess Laetitia Becci-Blunt of Rome, who has refurbished interiors of her palace in Rome as well as La Marlia, near Lucca, the famous villa that belonged to Napoleon's sister, Elia. The villa is an outstanding example of Italian Empire. The countess is a passionate photographer, and has a great collection of do-it-yourself photographs of famous people, including one of Mrs. Kennedy who attended a reception in e Pecci Palace.

Charles Beistegui of Paris, whose fabulous Palazzo Labia in Venice has ceilings by Tiepolo, and who is considered one of the greatest exponents of the 18th century period interior design. His chateau near Paris features the most priceless examples of an 18th century theater anywhere in the world.

American-born Countess Alison de Quintilla in Madrid lives in a magnificent 13th century house built on the ruins of a 2nd century Roman building on a magnificent ranch. Another estate a country place in Extramadura, has been in her husband's family for 23 generations.

Baron Alexis de Rede of Paris, who has recreated in his palace, the Hotel Lambert in the St. Louis, some of the great rooms of the past such as the bedroom designed by Pierre and Fontaine at the end of the 18th century for the brother of Louis XVI, the Count d'Artois. One of his famous achievements is a floating palace, a yacht furnished entirely in French Empire furnishings.

Card Club At Transue Home

Portland — The afternoon Card Club was entertained at the home of Mrs. Raymond Transue, Delaware Ave., on Thursday afternoon with prizes to Mrs. Charles Hower and Mrs. Harry Mogan.

Present were Mrs. O. K. Sorenson of Johnsonville, Mrs. Peter Tozzi of Columbia, N.J., Mrs. Lela Williams and Mrs. Charles Hower of Slatford, Mrs. Ernest Courtney, Mrs. Frank Gardner, Mrs. Harry Morgan, Mrs. E. Randall Carpenter.

Mrs. Arthur Barton will entertain the club at a bridge luncheon on Wednesday, April 8, at her home at King Cole, Columbia, N.J.

It's Party After Party In Her Catering Business

By Roberta Fleming Roesch
"If you don't try a business of your own, you'll never know whether or not you can run one," insists Maureen Grenier of New York.

This philosophy has worked for her, too. In the establishment of her own specialized catering business to supply everything for parties in New York City and the surrounding area.

The specialties of the house—in this case Maureen's own kitchen—are imaginative hors d'oeuvres for cocktail parties, dainty sandwiches for teas and such succulent foods as Stuffed Mushrooms Provencal, Chicken in Cognac, Beef Bourguignon and Curry of Lamb for dinner.

Foods can be picked up from Maureen's kitchen or delivered. Family Background
"I come from a family of good cooks," Maureen says in describing her background, "so I grew up knowing what good cooking and good entertaining were."

"Then my appetite for cooking was really whetted on time when, while I was ill, one of my aunts brought me a shopping bag filled with recipes, and she suggested I classify them."

Sharpened More
Later Maureen's fascination for cooking and foods was sharpened even more when—

Crusaders Report On Egg Hunt

Bartonsville — The 23rd annual Easter egg hunt sponsored by the Crusaders of St. John's Lutheran Church was held on the church grounds on March 28.

Crusaders in charge of the event were Millicent Allegor and Thelma Field. They were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Walter Von Brook, Joanne Dunbar, Sarah Jane Cyphers, Yvonne Klingel and Dorothy Possinger.

In the Nursery group Darlene Possinger found the most eggs, 11. Tied for second prize were Richie Field and Troy Fetherman, with 6.

Stevie Oltmann won first prize in the Primary group for finding the largest number of eggs, 14. Johnny Allegor and Randy Svinik tied for second place with 10.

In the Junior - Intermediate group Joe Martin found 11 eggs to win first prize. For second place there was a three way tie with Nancy Possinger, Larry Oltmann and John Klingel each finding nine eggs.

Marvin Possinger and Douglas Swink, of the Beginner class, each found 10 eggs to win first prizes in their group. Runner-up was Patricia Allegor with 7 eggs.

Other children participating in the hunt were Darlene Smith, Stevie Smith, Barry Bunting, Michael Bunting, Stevie Kirk, Kim Creveling, Peter Moe, Sherry Kresge, Susan Smith, Scott Smith, Larry Bunting, Royce Fetherman, Terry Klingel, Linda Oltmann, and Mark Fetherman.

All children present received chocolate eggs. Refreshments of cookies, pretzels, candy and beverages were served.

Dance Class To Organize

Stroudsburg — A dance group will be formed tonight at 9 in the Knights of Columbus Home. Dancing teachers will form the club at that time. Beginners and advanced groups will be started, and refreshments will be served. For further information, call dance chairman James Maureri.

just for the fun of it — she ended a summer vacation in Canada working side by side with a couple who owned a restaurant. But as far as her job was concerned, Maureen spent her time at a typewriter instead of a stove.

Then I got tired of sitting at a typewriter and decided I wanted a business of my own," she said. "So I made up my mind to go into catering on a shoestring, with no equipment or expenditure other than my regular kitchen facilities."

In an enterprising way, Maureen got her business on the road by making phone calls and sending postcards to her friends, giving this message: "Instead of sending Christmas cards this year, I'll do your Christmas parties for you."

"I got some takers from this offer," Maureen said, "so I did the parties, as I'd promised, charging only for expenses and food, not for my services."

From this ingenious beginning, Maureen began to get orders for parties.

Compiling A List
At the same time, she visited all the buildings in her area and asked the doorman in each for lists of the occupants. Then she sent them cards describing her catering service. This brought more orders, and from that time on her business has grown by word-of-mouth.

"As I mentioned in the beginning," Maureen says, "you'll never know until you try whether or not you can run your own business."

Quick Breads, Baked Now, Add Variety To Sandwiches For Spring Teas

By Linda Pipher
Daily Record Home Economist

Stroudsburg—A few weeks ago Mrs. Mary Meisel, of East Stroudsburg, called to ask me if I had any suggestions for making party sandwiches. She was planning a birthday party for her daughter, Lois, and wondered if I had any recipes she could use.

I told her that quick breads make delicious sandwiches either spread with butter or cream cheese and they also help to vary the assortment. If you're planning a spring tea, birthday party, or even looking ahead to graduation parties, consider baking quick breads now and storing them in the freezer.

These kinds of breads will slice easier, be more moist, and have better flavor if they are not cut until two or three days after they have been baked. After they are completely cold, wrap them in foil and store in the cupboard; if you are going to freeze them, let the bread "age" before freezing.

This first recipe is for a dark, moist bread with a delicious flavor. Although it's nice for parties, it makes a wonderful breakfast bread just spread with soft butter.

Applesauce-Raisin Bread
1 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon nutmeg
2/3 cup brown sugar
2 eggs
1 cup thick, sweetened applesauce
1/2 cup quick or old fashioned oatmeal, uncooked
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
1/3 cup melted shortening

Sift together flour, baking powder, soda, salt and spices. Add brown sugar, eggs and applesauce. Beat until well blended. Stir in oats, raisins, nutmeats and shortening. Pour batter into a greased one pound loaf pan. Bake in a preheated 350 oven about 1 hour. Remove from pan; cool. Store at least two days before slicing.

Did you know that when you use glass pans for baking you should reduce the heat twenty-five degrees? Because glass holds heat, your bread (or cake) is liable to form a crust on the sides and bottom or get too browned if you do not lower the heat.

Banana breads are always a favorite. This recipe is a little different than the usual because it uses bran which adds a new flavor. You can use either fresh, frozen or canned orange juice.

Banana Bran Bread
1/3 cup shortening
1/2 cup sugar
1 egg, well beaten
2 cups bran flakes
1 1/2 cups sifted all purpose flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 cup chopped walnuts

When using quick breads for sandwiches, slice it as thin as possible and then cut each slice into about three strips. However, if you want to have extra nice sandwiches, the batter can be baked in frozen juice or soup cans which have been greased. This will give you perfect circles of bread to make dainty sandwiches.

Batter baked in juice cans will take about 20-25 minutes while soup cans will take about thirty minutes. Let bread cool in cans and then when cold, remove bottom of can with can opener, and push bread out with the cut lid.

To test quick breads for doneness, lightly touch with finger and if it springs back, it is done. A cake tester stuck through the middle should come out clean. Be careful not to overbake for this will dry bread out.

This orange bread has a good orange flavor for it's made not only with juice but also the rind of oranges. Peel the rind very thin off the orange before cutting into strips.

Florida Orange Bread
1/2 cup orange rind sliced (about 4 oranges)
1 1/2 cups sugar
1/3 cup water
3 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 cups orange juice
3 eggs, well beaten
4 cups sifted all purpose flour

Rev. Dr. Franz Hildebrandt

Theologian To Speak At Swiftwater

STROUDSBURG — The Rev. Dr. Franz Hildebrandt, Philadelphia professor of Christian theology at Drew University, Madison, N.J., will deliver a guest sermon at the Swiftwater Methodist Church this Sunday at 11 a.m.

The Rev. Thomas Cenker, pastor of the Swiftwater and Arlington Heights Methodist churches, said the Dr. Hildebrandt will preach to the combined congregation this Sunday.

The Rev. Mr. Cenker said combined Sunday School services will be held at the Swiftwater church at 9:30 a.m. He said a covered dish dinner, honoring members of both churches received Palm Sunday, will follow the services.

Dr. Hildebrandt was ordained a Lutheran minister in 1933, in Berlin, Germany, but resigned his position in opposition to Hitler's invasion of religious freedom.

He returned to Germany in 1934 to work for the church's fight with Hitler's suppression of religious freedom. Dr. Hildebrandt ultimately escaped to England.

He became a Methodist minister in 1946, following service with the World Council of Churches. Dr. Hildebrandt came to Drew in 1953 from Edinburgh, Scotland. In 1961 he took a year's sabbatical leave to study the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. Hildebrandt has studied at Tubingen and Berlin Universities in Germany and received his doctor of philosophy degree from Cambridge University in England. He received an honorary doctor of divinity degree in 1960.

While in Stroudsburg, he will baptize the Rev. Mr. Cenker's five-month-old son, Randolph.

Jackson Wants Camps Taxed

READERS — Jackson Twp. supervisors discussed camps in the township which are tax-exempt at their meeting Wednesday night in Jackson Twp. Firehouse. They took no action.

The supervisors said they would like all camps on the tax books, but under present laws they are unable to order them placed on the tax books.

In other business they approved payment of $700.00 in township bills.

Pocono Joint School Meetings

SWIFTWATER — David E. Nelson, secretary of the Pocono Mountain Joint School District, announced the following schedule of meetings in the district:

The Paradise Township School Board will meet Monday at 8 p.m. in the Paradise Community Center in Swiftwater.

The joint school authority will meet Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. the Junior-Senior High School in Swiftwater. The joint school board will meet the same night at 8 p.m. in the high school.

McComas Chapel Supper Tonight

ANALOMINK — A covered dish supper will be held for the McComas Methodist Chapel at the Broadhead Hunting and Fishing Club, Analomink at 5:30 p.m. today.

Those attending are urged to bring their dinnerware, cup and saucer. A covered dish and small donations are requested.

Trial Continues In Reis Case

POTTSVILLE, Pa. (AP) — Arguments by opposing counsel, with the jury out of the Schuylkill County courtroom, Thursday prevented the state from resting its case at the burglary trial of Philadelphia showgirl Lillian Reis.

Miss Reis, 34-year-old shapely brunette who once owned a Philadelphia night club, is accused of planning the burglary of a safe in the Pottsville home of John B. Rich in the summer of 1959. This is her second trial. Her first ended in a deadlocked jury.

7 logical reasons for an emotional decision

1. Drive with loving care—and rely on seat belts! If every American Family that owns a car installed seat belts—and used them—we could reduce severe injuries from auto accidents by one-third and reduce deaths by at least 5,000 a year!

These estimates are not theoretical. If anything, they are conservative, according to the responsible authorities who have been studying auto accidents for years. The U.S. Public Health Service, the American Medical Association, Cornell University Medical College, The National Safety Council, insurance companies and many others agree that simply using seat belts can accomplish results like these. What's more, America's automobile manufacturers this year will equip all their new models with seat belt anchorage points, so equipping a new car with seat belts is a simple matter. And some states are now considering legislation making installation of seat belts mandatory.

One thing you can be sure of: all these organizations and authorities would not be going to this effort to promote the use of seat belts if they were not convinced by overwhelming evidence that seat belts will save lives. Can you, as a parent, continue to ignore the one step that can protect your children when they are in the deepest danger?

2. How seat belts protect children in cars

Most injuries to children—and to adults, too—occur when the car comes to a sudden stop due to impact, or simply because the driver has to slam on the brakes to avoid an accident. Because of the suddenness, the child is hurled out of his seat and against the dashboard, windshield or back of the driver's seat.

A seat belt will hold a child—or an adult—in his seat and eliminate or minimize the effect of his body's forward motion when the car comes to a sudden halt. Most people do not realize that a high percentage of all vehicular deaths and injuries occur when a car is going slowly. The records show that more than half of the accidents causing injury or death involve speeds of less than 40 miles per hour!

The force of impact, even at very slow speeds, can be terrific. If a 200 lb. man traveling in a car at 20 mph hits an immovable object, the forward thrust of his body is equivalent to his falling out of a one-and-one-half story window! But a seat belt will hold that man in his seat at many times that speed. And it will do the same for your children, too.

What's more, when your child is protected by a seat belt, you'll be able to keep both hands on the wheel during a panic stop, instead of reaching over with one hand to try and hold the child in place. This extra control could mean the difference between a safe stop and an accident.

3. Aren't seat belts confining?

Certainly. So are shoes and socks! Would you rather have a healthy confined child or a maimed unconfined one?

Seat belts are confining only in the sense that they hold you in your seat. Your child will be perfectly free to move his arms, legs, head and upper body—in short he'll be free to fidget as much as he normally does—but he won't be free to be thrown from his seat.

And any child, except the very smallest who normally would not be sitting on a car seat by himself, can quickly learn to fasten and unfasten his seat belt. Most seat belts fasten in two or three seconds and unfasten practically instantly with just one hand.

Parents go to considerable effort teaching their children to walk to school safely, to swim, to ride a bicycle. Teaching them to use their seat belts is only a matter of minutes, but it is also a matter of life and death. It is one thing every parent should insist on his child's doing unquestioningly, every time he rides in a car. Because a car is the most dangerous place your child can be!

LOVE AND SEAT BELTS

Each year in the United States drivers kill and cripple more children than any disease, or any other cause.

Yes, automobile accidents destroy more children's lives and bodies than polio, pneumonia, cancer or heart disease.

As parents we do our utmost to protect our precious children from illness and disease. We vaccinate our youngsters against smallpox. We give them shots to prevent diphtheria and polio. And if illness does strike, modern medicine has an arsenal of weapons which usually conquers microbes and viruses before serious damage can occur.

But what are we doing to protect our children when they are in the most danger of all—when they ride in our automobiles? The answer is nothing! Surely, this is a shocking indictment, but being shocked doesn't alter the truth of it, or lessen our responsibility as parents.

The simple fact of the matter is that we continue to expose our children to death or disability every day, when there is a simple, positive step each of us can take that can protect them—and us—from disaster! Why haven't we taken this step? It is because so few of us know the facts.

4. I drive at safe and sensible speeds. Why do I need seat belts?

Most people believe they are good drivers. And most of them are. They always feel that it's "the other fellow" that has accidents. Maybe so, but how can you tell when "the other fellow" is going to ram into you? How can you guard against it? You can't, other than to drive with loving care—and rely on seat belts.

Figures show that more than half of all deaths and injuries occur at speeds below 40, but even more telling is the fact that three out of four traffic deaths occur within 25 miles from home! Not on long trips at turnpike speeds, but on your daily trips to and from school, shopping, and work—at town speeds! The conclusion is obvious. An accident or a sudden stop can occur at any time. A seat belt will protect you or your child at any time—if you only use it!

5. Won't a seat belt keep me in the car in an accident? And isn't it better to be thrown clear?

Yes, a seat belt will keep you in the car—and it will probably keep you conscious, too, so you can open it with one hand and get out of the car safely!

No, it is not better to be thrown clear! Ask any highway patrolman, or call the emergency ward of your hospital if you want the truth about this superstition! Here are the facts based on years of study of accidents by safety, police and medical authorities. Your chances of being killed are five times greater if you are thrown from the car than if you remain inside. Your seat belt will keep you in the car. It will probably keep you conscious so you can get out safely. Many fire and police departments have made the use of seat belts mandatory for their personnel because they save lives.

6. What if the car should burst into flame, or plunge into water?

Though less than one percent of all accidents involve fire or submersion, a seat belt greatly improves your chances of survival. It can help keep you conscious, so that you can unfasten the belt and get clear of the car.

7. This "critical distance" can mean life or death for your child.

The distance between your child's head and the windshield or dash, (if he rides up front) or the rear of the front seat, is critical.

For if the car comes to a sudden stop, his head will strike the windshield or dash, or back of the seat with crushing force—unless he is restrained by a seat belt!

Look at that critical distance again. See how short it is. The critical distance for you, the driver, is even shorter!

Only a seat belt can help you keep that distance in an emergency.

Shouldn't you have seat belts in your car? The cost of protecting your child with a properly installed seat belt need not be more than the cost of two home visits by your doctor for measles. This is insurance you must provide for your child, for no matter how good a driver you are, he's never in greater danger than when he's riding in the car. Give him all the love and protection you can.

Drive with loving care—and protect your child and yourself with seat belts!

Westinghouse Strike Imminent

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The series of walk-outs at the Westinghouse Electric Corp., plant in nearby Lester apparently headed toward a full-scale strike with an announcement Friday that picket lines will be set up Monday.

Some 4,500 members of Local 107 of the United Electrical Workers, an independent union, have taken part in the walkouts, in protest against disciplinary action taken by the company in a labor dispute.

Carl Gray, business manager of the local, said the union has mailed out picket assignments. He said that a strike warning filed three weeks ago during a three-day walkout is still valid.

Gray added that Westinghouse workers at plants in East Pittsburgh and Cincinnati also have taken strike votes.

Local 107 charges Westinghouse with trying to bypass seniority in making temporary job assignments. The union claims this is a way of combining jobs to compensate for the lay-off of 200 production workers last month.

Westinghouse officials claim that seniority must be in connection with layoffs and overtime.

Shafer Predicts Economy Growth

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J. (AP)—Pennsylvania will have a record-breaking economic growth this year, Lt. Gov. Raymond P. Shafer said Friday.

Shafer told the annual convention of the Associated Pennsylvania Contractors that before "the recent reform in our bankrupt unemployment compensation law investment in Pennsylvania's future was a calculated risk, but now we are offering a blue chip Pennsylvania with a dynamic growth pattern."

Speaking further of Gov. William Scranton's highly controversial unemployment compensation program, which the legislature passed last month, Shafer said:

"Pennsylvania now, not only has a favorable business climate, but one which is solidly rooted on the bedrock foundation of freedom of enterprise. Our entire plan for raising Pennsylvania's economy is based on the logic that business, not government, creates jobs. We are convinced that the surplus of labor is really a shortage of employers due to the serious impairment of freedom of enterprise."

Temple Peace Prize To Shriver

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Temple University Friday named R. Sargent Shriver Jr., director of the Peace Corps, as the recipient of the university's first World Peace Award.

It will be presented April 10, at the university's annual Founder's Dinner.

The triennial award, established in memory of Lawrence C. Kline by his mother, provides, in the words of Temple president Millard E. Gladfelter: "Suitable recognition to that man or woman of any race, color or creed who has made a conspicuous contribution to the advancement of the cause of peace and understanding among nations and men."

The award carries a cash prize of $3,000 and a bronze statuette created by the chairman of Temple's sculpture department, Raphael Sabatini.

Shriver has headed the Peace Corps since its creation in 1961, by the late President John F. Kennedy, his brother-in-law. President Johnson recently designated him to head the war-on-poverty program.

Tax Evasion Sentence Put Off

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Sentencing of Robert L. Dougherty Sr., of Wyoming, Luzerne County, in federal court was postponed Friday to 10 a.m. next Wednesday by U.S. District Court Judge William J. Nealon after counsel for the defendant raised objections concerning certain procedures used by the government in its case.

Dougherty originally was charged with evasion of $118,412 in income taxes for the years 1956, 1957 and 1958. He pleaded innocent at the outset but last Oct. 11 changed his plea to nolo contendere on the second count of the indictment.

This count involved a $72,542 difference between the tax paid and the amount the government alleged was owed.

Judge Nealon accepted the plea originally. Friday, however, when Dougherty was called for sentencing, attorney Arthur A. Maguire, counsel for the defense, launched into an hour and a half discussion of government procedures in conducting the investigation.

Legislature Faces Project 70 Battle

(Editors note: Now that the legislature battle over unemployment compensation is finished, Project 70—Pennsylvania's $70 million land reclamation and recreation program—takes the legislative spotlight. The final phase of the plan is before the Senate, laying the ground rules for purchase of land for recreational purposes. The Associated Press takes another look at this program in the following article.)

By DAVE LEHERR
Associated Press Writer
HARRISBURG (AP)—Project 70 is Pennsylvania's $70 million blueprint for more "breathing space."

Its ultimate aim: a statewide network of parks and natural playgrounds providing much needed recreation spots for the millions of people living in heavily populated urban areas.

Pennsylvania voters authorized the program last November in a special referendum. Now it's up to the legislature to lay the ground rules and safeguards for spending the money.

In essence, Project 70 authorizes the state to borrow up to $70 million through bonds to purchase land for parks, reservoirs and other conservation, recreation, and historical purposes.

Urban Area Parks
The proposal before the legislature now breaks down the $70 million figure into $40 million for establishment of regional state parks in 43 so-called critical urban counties; $20 million for matching funds in the development of local parks and playgrounds; and $5 million each to the state Game and Fish Commissions for acquisition of more hunting and fishing areas.

Little opposition is expected to this final phase of the Project 70 program when the House and Senate reconvene in special session May 4.

Program In Brief
The bill the program is designed to:

- acquire land for development of new regional state parks in 43 counties.
- acquire wooded land and stream valleys, increasing fish and wildlife.
- enable local communities to provide additional open space for recreational and scenic purposes.
- encourage and assist in the creation of three new federal recreational facilities, each containing large man-made lakes.
- provide sites for future construction of multi-purpose reservoirs necessary to protect Pennsylvania's waterways.
- stimulate further development of Pennsylvania as a leading vacationland.
- and preserve the many historical landmarks with which Pennsylvania is so richly endowed.

Critical Counties
Listed as critical counties in the program are Adams, Allegheny, Armstrong, Beaver, Berks, Blair, Bradford, Bucks, Butler, Cambria, Carbon, Chester, Columbia, Crawford, Cumberland, Dauphin, Delaware, Erie, Fayette, Greene, Indiana, Lackawanna, Lancaster, Lawrence, Lebanon, Lehigh, Luzerne, Lycoming, Mercer, Montgomery, Montour, Northampton, Northumberland, Philadelphia, Schuylkill, Somerset, Susquehanna, Venango, Washington, Wayne, Westmoreland, Wyoming, and York.

These are the areas were publicly owned recreational land is less than 10 per cent of the total land area or where there is an urban area of at least 25,000 persons.

25 Major Parks
The Forests and Waters Department is already planning some 25 regional parks near key population centers. At the same time, three federal recreational areas will be established—one at the Allegheny River reservoir near Warren; another at the Tock's Island reservoir to be constructed on the Delaware River; and the third along the Raystown Branch of the Juniata River.

"The emphasis is on trying to put the parks near the people before the land is eaten up by commercial users," says Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, secretary of forests and waters, and chief architect of Project 70.

Started under the Lawrence administration, Project 70 at first ran into heavy opposition from the state Grange and independent farmers, who feared that some of their land would be taken away.

The opposition has softened under the impact of Gov. Scranton's proposed reforms to the eminent domain laws, liberalizing payments for privately owned land taken over by the state for public use.

Final action on Project 70 hinges on the eminent domain proposals.

Senate leaders say they will not act on Project 70 until they have received the eminent domain legislation from the House and had a chance to examine it. Project 70 is now in the Senate Forests and Waters, Game and Fish Committee.

Scranton Invites Johnson To State

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. Scranton invited President Johnson Thursday to include Pennsylvania in his forthcoming tour of the nation's depressed areas.

"There are a number of places the state administration would like to show you," Scranton said in a telegram to the President.

"Believe such visits would bring into sharp focus the needs that should be met by any anti-poverty program," the telegram continued. "You can be sure of a warm welcome from all Pennsylvanians if you decide to come here."

CARLTON T. MILLER, a senior at Albright College and the grandson of Mrs. Stanley Mills of Cresco, has been selected for "Who's Who Among Students at Colleges and Universities." He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Brooke Miller of Wyomissing, Pa.

Retarded Girls Institute Gives Love, Security

Editor's note: A Roman Catholic order has set up a school for mentally retarded girls in a 61-room building that once was the home of a millionaire. Few neighbors even know the school is there.

By SAM TAYLOR
Lancaster New Era
ELVERSON, Pa. (AP)—Tucked away in the rolling hills of Chester County, the St. Mary of Providence Institute for retarded girls is so secluded and quietly operated that very few people even know it is there.

This week, I walked into the main playroom where the younger girls, dressed in red checked jumpers and white blouses, were having a romp.

One look showed that here were girls with a problem, but, problem or no, they were first and foremost a group of happy children whose happiness was bolstered by an environment of security and love.

Same Laughter
Shutting an eye for a moment, the thrill of laughter and the buzz of conversation was the same as that to be found in any kindergarten in the country even though some of the girls were in the 12-year-old age bracket.

The laughter and warm response are the reward which receive for long, tedious hours of training.

While this group was exercising, another group was in the gymnasium—roller skating. The smaller girls were being helped to the first awkward process of coordination by the larger ones, while one of the sisters in her flowing black habit was gliding gracefully among the younger and less practiced beginners.

160 Girls
"We have 160 girls here," said Sister Patricia, one of the administrators, "with all levels of mental retardation. Our intelligence quotient range runs from a low of 15 to a high 75."

"Each girl is an individual case, and her needs are tailored to her limitations of learning and behavior."

Doing the job of caring for and educating the mentally retarded girls, who range in age from 6 to 16, is a daily task to which the congregation of the Daughters of St. Mary of Providence are totally dedicated.

The Pennsylvania school is located four miles southwest of Elverson in a 61-room limestone mansion set on a hill. Flanked by two immense servants' cottages, it is framed by a thickly wooded area.

The nuns bought the house, known as "Langoma," in 1949. It was once the country home of William B. Potts, Philadelphia millionaire whose ancestors were the iron masters at nearby Isabella furnace.

"Our girls," says Sister Patricia, "fall into two main categories—the trainable and the educable."

"In the case of the former, those who fall in the low IQ group our main job is to make them as self-sufficient as possible. In time, and over a long period, they learn to dress themselves, comb their own hair and care for their personal needs."

"You'd be surprised," she adds with a smile, "what a victory it is for both the teacher and the child when the day comes that she voluntarily runs a comb through her hair. This is a little thing we take for granted, but here it means a big step forward."

Educable Girls
The educables, Sister Patricia explained, receive schooling in simple arithmetic, reading, writing and primary academic subjects to the limit of their abilities.

They are taught arts, crafts and homemaking, with a great deal of emphasis on the latter.

The Liston Myth

LOS ANGELES—One examining the testimony before the Senate antitrust and monopoly subcommittee, which is poking its snout into the affairs of boxing, is staggered not so much by the business irregularities of Sonny Liston as by the personal insight into the former champion as offered by manager Jack Nilon.

Painting his fighter as a self-pampering hypochondriac, who, at the first sniffle, has visions of triple pneumonia, Nilon has ripped to small fragments the Liston myth of raw savagery and toughness.

He has obliterated the Liston image, leaving outsiders to cast the fighter as a bully and a stock company heavy whose celebrated scowl will never be believed again.

This isn't to impute that every palooka who comes along will flatten Sonny, because the guy remains a good fighter. But it's safe to assume that the mental attitude of his opponents will change.

Very likely, the start of managing Liston will change, too, in view of the startling revelations by Nilon, who gives you the unmistakable impression of one fed up to his eyeballs, if not higher, with his boxer.

Nilon is no racket guy. He is a cynical but honest sort who came into the net partly because of vanity, but mostly because of the money.

The going offered excitement which Nilon liked and the rewards looked promising if Sonny could ever get his hands on the title.

It is doubtful, however, that the manager pictured the abuse to which he would be exposed. Liston was childish privately and even embarrassed him in public.

Before the second Patterson fight in Las Vegas, a reporter at a crowded press conference advised Sonny, almost whimsically, to be pleasant like his manager.

Liston turned viciously on Nilon, described him as a "ducker" who can afford to be sweet because he stands outside the ring when the punches are flying. Nilon took the insult silently.

In calling Liston "neurotic" and pointing up his tendency to exaggerate minor infirmities, Jack strengthened the case of those witnesses who felt that Sonny was not a man ridden with serious injury or uncommon pain when he retired at the end of the sixth round in his last fight.

If the illusion of toughness which Liston tried to preserve now has vanished and you are left to evaluate him with other heavyweight champions of the last 25 years, you begin with one irrefutable judgment. He was better than Floyd Patterson.

With his style, Sonny also may have beaten Jersey Joe Walcott. Certainly, the hands of Liston would have been too swift and the heart of Marciano too big. And there is considerable doubt whether Liston could have handled Ezzard Charles, who could box and punch better than Cassius Clay.

An honest appraisal of Sonny is complicated by the absence of an important piece of evidence, namely, his true age.

To compare, say, a 38-year-old Liston with a 28-year-old Louis is unfair to Sonny. The exact mileage on Liston is a genuine mystery.

The only one to beat him prior to the Clay fight was a Marty Marshall of Detroit. They first fought in 1954, at which time Marshall guessed they were pretty much the same vintage.

In Miami Beach last February, Marshall said playfully that he was 33, but could be as much as 36. Now he has applied for a boxing license in Michigan where he is listed as 40.

If the Senate Subcommittee has trouble figuring out Liston as a person, you can imagine the problem of understanding his financial structure.

Sonny has been pictured as an uneducated rustic who irresponsibly would give a large chunk of his loot to an old friend, who swears he is not fronting for the mob.

There is no documentation here on what is happening to the money, but it is foolish to assume that Liston is an oaf whose conception of cash is anything but clear.

He is a street-smart guy who got his schooling in business from pretty basic teachers.

In other words, Sonny may not be able to read, but he can count.

Don Schollander Sets Swim Mark

By BOB HARING

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP)—

Don Schollander sliced nearly two seconds off his 200-yard freestyle American record and swimmers from Michigan, Indiana and Japan copied championships in the second day of the men's AAU Indoor Swimming and Diving Championships Friday night.

Schollander, a 17-year-old Santa Clara High School boy, splashed in four yards in front of a star-studded field in a record 1:42.6 minutes.

Japan's Kenjiro Matsumoto won the 200-yard breaststroke University of Michigan sophomore Ed Bartsch took the 200-yard backstroke and Indiana's Fred Schmidt ripped Michigan freshman Carl Rippet in the 200-yard butterfly.

Schmidt, defending AAU indoor champion and national collegiate winner last week, and Rippet were timed in 1:53.8, but Schmidt was judged first.

Schollander, who said "I was hoping for 1:42-plus", moved into the lead at the turn of the 100-yard mark and stroked on ahead of California's Gary Ilman, a Foothill College sophomore, and Yale's Steve Clark, a former Santa Clara teammate.

Schollander set the listed American record of 1:44.4 last year and Clark tied it last week, but Schollander recorded a 1:43.5 in a dual meet this year.

Roy Saavi, 19, who beat Schollander and Clark in the short free style here two years ago, was fourth, thus losing his bid for a third straight triple AAU victory.

The world record holder in the 200-meter backstroke, Indiana's Tom Stock, failed to qualify for the finals. Defending AAU champion and American record holder Chuck Bittick did not compete.

RAY HARTMANN & SONS OPEN HOUSE CONTINUES

INDUSTRIAL LINE INCREASED

Ray Hartmann & Sons have increased the industrial lines of their business tremendously in the past few years to a position now where it is presently listed number one in percentages of sales in district A.

A complete service staff and parts room for Massey-Ferguson and other equipment is maintained in the new all steel Shenango building pictured. Ray Hartmann & Sons is also the authorized dealer for the steel buildings in Monroe County.

All products sold by Ray Hartmann & Sons carry manufacturer's warranty and quality service is fully maintained by the Ray Hartmann & Sons Maintenance staff.

With ample space in the all new Shenango building, Ray Hartmann & Sons have planned carefully along the service lines to extend complete maintenance facilities for its entire industrial line. The Ray Hartmann & Sons Staff now includes: Ray Hartmann, Roger Hartmann, Clyde Hallett, Ronald Lyon, Arthur L. Beers, Turrel Keller, and James Archer.

Many products are stocked in the parts department including cable, hydraulic hose, log chains, and many other industrial items. Drop in this weekend especially during Open House and take advantage of the many offers.

GYPSY MOTH SPRAY AREAS—The shaded areas will be sprayed with Sevin sometime this spring. Sevin, a new chemical being tested by the Agriculture Department, replaces DDT, the chemical used last year to eradicate gypsy moth in the area.

State To Check Gypsy Spray Areas

HARRISBURG — A "before and after" study is being planned in gypsy moth spray areas of the Pocono Mountains this spring, State Agriculture Secretary Leland H. Bull said yesterday.

He did not say when the spraying would start.

There are six areas in Monroe, Pike and Northampton Counties to be sprayed with sevin, a less toxic poison being used in place of DDT. After the spray a team from the Agriculture Department will move into the area to observe and evaluate the results.

Area Near Stroudsburg

The largest area to receive the treatment is a 7,500-acre stretch along the top of Blue Mountain running from Delaware Water Gap toward Wind Gap. It is an area about seven miles long and five miles wide.

Other areas in the spray program are: an area southeast of Bushkill, in the section known as the Hog Back; an area southeast of Skytop; an area near Child's State Park in Pike County (see map); an area northwest of Matamoras, and an area southeast of Hawley.

The first announcement of use of the new chemical, sevin, was made at a meeting March 2 in the Penn-Stroud Hotel with state and local speakers telling the 50 local persons plans for the spray program.

Speakers were, in addition to Bull, Henry Nixon, head of the bureau of plant industry; Arthur Jeffries, local administrator of the program; John Withrow, county agent, and Dr. Donald Frear, biochemist from Pennsylvania State University.

Eradication Goal

Nixon told the meeting that the state wants the eradication of the moth, but because of severe infection in neighboring states, it often reimplants itself in border areas such as the Poconos by floating with the wind across the Delaware River.

At the March 2 meeting, Nixon said this year sevin will be used in place of DDT.

"Sevin is not a chlorinated hydrocarbon. (Such pesticides as Chlordane, Aldrin, Dieldrin, are very toxic chlorinated hydrocarbons). It is a carbamate. This means that it is so safe it can be used on lettuce and cabbage — foods we eat fresh — and has no ten part per million tolerance.

"Alfalfa, which cattle eat, may have a 100 ppm tolerance. This is very high compared to DDT because it is so safe.

"Sevin does not build up in fatty tissues of the body or in the vital organs, as does DDT.

16 Day Life

"It's disadvantages are that it has a residual effect of only ten days. This means that after ten days, it disintegrates, which means we must spray the moths just as they emerge from their cases in the spring. Another disadvantage is that sevin kills honeybees."

Nixon said that the state will supply trucks to transport honeybees out of the area if the hive owners supply the labor. "What happens if we don't eradicate the moths?" Nixon asked.

Forest Defoliation

"First, defoliation occurs. In 1962 in New England, the moths completely stripped 500,000 acres of woodland of leaves.

"Secondly, federal quarantines can be slapped on an area, with much expense and time taken.

"Third, the $1.6 billion tourist industry in the state can be severely hampered. Who wants to see trees without leaves?

"Fourth, with dead trees, the water supply can be hurt badly." It was also pointed out that sevin has been found to be 5,000 times safer than DDT on mullet, a species of fish.

The department of agriculture has put out 10,000 traps in the Pocono Mountain area to spot gypsy moth infestation.

The traps are a small green diox cup with a hole in the top. The inside is coated with tanglefoot — a sticky substance — and a little powerful female gypsy moth scent is applied to a cotton ball.

If even two male moths are trapped, spraying is indicated, Nixon said.

State Gives $189,092 Aid To Monroe For Road Work

HARRISBURG — The State Highway Department announced yesterday it has made payments totaling $189,092.27 in liquid fuel tax allocations to townships and boroughs in Monroe County.

The money represents 90 percent of the state's payment of the fuel tax money that must be allocated and spent for the repair and maintenance of highways and roads.

Borough Allocations

The four boroughs receiving payments were East Stroudsburg, $12,284.26; Stroudsburg, $9,794.01; Mt. Pocono, $2,986.53; and Delaware Water Gap, $1,243.86.

The Highway Department divided $162,783.61 among the county's 16 second class townships. Their shares:

Barrett, $11,420.78; Chestnut Hill, $12,860.24; Coolbaugh, $8,582.10; Eldred, $8,731.62; Hamilton, $16,817.10; Jackson, $8,790.73; Middle Smithfield, $15,231.40; Paradise, $8,406.01; Pocono, $12,154.58; Polk, $13,539.01; Price, $2,422.13; Ross, $8,884.73.

Also Smithfield, $10,699.96; Stroud, $17,456.52; Tunkhannock, $6,508.35; and Tunkhannock, $2,258.35.

Sen. Scott Votes Yes For 4 Bills

HARRISBURG — State Senator William Z. Scott of the 14th state senatorial district, which includes Monroe and Pike counties, voted in favor of four bills that successfully passed the senate last week.

Scott, a Republican from Lansford, voted yes on the following bills:

1 — A joint resolution to amend the state constitution to exempt persons over age 65, who receive less than $3,500 gross income annually from payment of local real estate and per capita taxes.

2 — To amend the state constitution to authorize the legislature to enact general laws granting veterans preference in appointments to public positions in the state. The bill also grants additional preference to disabled veterans.

3 — To appropriate all unexpended or unencumbered funds already appropriated for the observance of the 100th anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg. The money will be spent to publish a book covering the activities of the Lincoln's Gettysburg Address Commission.

4 — Set up an appropriation of $16,000 to the Development and Work Center for the Adult Trainables, Inc. of Pittsburgh.

During the 1964 session the General Assembly is restricted to action on bills raising revenue or making appropriations.
